Beall Tells Jury Taylor Offered $400 Bribe

MOORE REFUSES 2 DEFENSE PLEAS TO DROP CHARGE

Testimony and Arguments Will Be Finished Today, State Prosecutor Declares.

EX-COUNCILMAN CHIEF WITNESS

Former Clerk Offered Reward for Vote on Pool Hall License, State's Evidence Shows.

Marked by two determined but unsuccessful efforts of the defense to thwart the prosecution, the trial of Walter C. Taylor, ex-city clerk, on an attempted bribery charge in Fulton Virlyn B. Moore's division of Fulton superior court, Monday afternoon proceeded to a point where Special Prosecutor William Schley Howard predicted that the jury will get the case by tonight.

Judge Moore ruled in favor of the state on both a demurrer filed by the defense and a motion by the defense to strike the testimony of the principal witness for the state, J. A. Beall, former councilman and grand juror.

After Taylor had been ruled on trial, Beall testified at length regarding an alleged offer of $400 in 1923 to secure favorable action on a pool room and billiard parlor license. Beall said that while he was in council and on the police committee, Taylor told him he was "authorized to pay $400" for favorable action on the license for the pool room of R. Amiel, Solomon Pina and Morris Israel at 60 Walton street; Beall said he turned Taylor down, but agreed that he would not reveal what had transpired.

Attacking Beall's testimony with a motion to rule it out, which would have the effect of killing the case, Defense Counsel Reuben H. Arnold argued to Judge Moore that when Beall went on the grand jury in 1927, the statute of limitations began to run in Taylor's favor and the two-year limit had expired in 1929. Solicitor General John A. Boykin contended with the declaration that there had been a concealment of crime and that

King Snake Tiger To Meet Rattler Next Saturday

By WILLIAM O. KEY, JR.
It's all set, ladies and gentlemen. Tiger, the king snake, and his supposed mortal enemy, Peter the rattler, will be given an opportunity to battle it out next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in front of the grandstand at Lakewood.

Announcement of the decision to settle the city-wide discussion of supremacy between the two species of snakes was made late Monday afternoon by Thammell Scott, sportsman, in whose store Peter and Tiger have been languishing for almost a week. Oscar, another king snake and smaller than Tiger, Monday was reported vaguely to be "somewhere in the window Sunday," it was said, and hidden in the labyrinth of sporting material inside. Inasmuch as Tiger is known to be of quite catholic appetite and not at all averse to dining on his own kind of brethren, he was given a careful once-over before being placed in his cage next to Peter's, but his girth against devouring his mortal enemy, Percy Van Landingham, Saturday, did not appear suspiciously enhanced, and the assumption that Oscar still was about the store could not be questioned.

Major Scott emphasized that Saturday's exhibition will be absolutely free to the public. Tickets will be given away, not sold, to all desirous of witnessing the well-publicized fight. Major Scott said. Anyone so desiring should come by his store at 40 North Broad street, or go to the Hallman-Whitten Company at 41 North Forsyth, where such tickets admitting the bearer to the grandstand may be had for the asking. There will be no charge at Lakewood, which was readily granted as the site by Oscar Mills, of the Southeastern Fair Association.

No Trouble Seen By Acting Mayor

COOKING SCHOOL TO START TODAY

Constitution Sponsors Free Event for Women at Keith's Georgia.

Opening of the free electric cooking school sponsored by The Constitution at 10 o'clock this morning in Keith's Georgia theater is regarded as the outstanding calendar event of the day by hundreds of Atlanta women who have awaited the arrival of the occasion since the first advance announcement.

Arranged at an hour and location of greatest convenience to the average housewife, the great cooking exposition, consisting of a four-day school held at Keith's Georgia theater under the direction of Mrs. Vera Howard Hall, nationally famous home economist, is expected to get under way this morning amid a scene of brilliant, though simple, activity on the part of the local feminine world as the trail of the housewife leads from every corner of the city to Keith's Georgia theater door.

'SLATON SPENDING BIG SUMS'—HARRIS

Senator Asserts His Vote Against Parker Based on Latter's Unfitness.

DUBLIN, Ga., July 28.—(P)—Senator William J. Harris opened his campaign for re-election with an hour's address in the courthouse here Monday, stressing his devotion to the common people and the farmers of the state and climaxing his talk by saying that if money is being spent by candidates in Laurens county the fact will be made public later.

Senator Harris made no reference to the League of Nations in his talk. Later, when asked for a statement, he said "the league is not an issue in this campaign."

He declared that never before in history has there been such strong efforts to buy the political representatives of the people and that his opponent, ex-Governor John M. Slaton, is spending more during the present campaign than any man has spent in the past hundred years. If any one in Laurens county is receiving any of this money, then the fact will become known later," the senator said.

Millican in Proclamation States People of Atlanta Living in Security; Condemns Rumors.

Acting Mayor G. Everett Millican Monday assailed rumors of trouble between the races in Atlanta and issued a proclamation asserting that "the good people of this city are living in peace and as full security for person and life as the inhabitants of any city of the nation."

Mr. Millican stated that "there is no reason apparent to the closest search why these amicable relations should be invaded and brought into conflict."

Co-operation Urged.

The proclamation was issued following a call upon the acting mayor by white ministers representing the leading churches of the city.

The colored committee on church co-operation, meeting Monday in the Butler Street Y. M. C. A., at which were representatives of the negro pastors, the Urban League, the Negro Business League, the colleges, Sunday school organizations and the law profession, issued a statement asking the full co-operation of colored citizens against giving currency to unfounded rumors and to "exercise that self-control and demeanor expected of all good citizens."

The acting mayor's proclamation follows:

Mayor's Proclamation.
To the Public:
The good people of this city are living in peace, and as full security for person and life as the inhabitants of any other city of the nation. Just and satisfactory relations between all races and creeds in our midst have long prevailed. There is no reason apparent to the closest search why those amicable relations should be invaded and brought into conflict.

It appears that incendiary and provocative actions are going on in the city, and that the result is the destruction of the harmony and peace and safety of our people, white and black. There is no reason apparent to the closest search why those amicable relations should be invaded and brought into conflict.

Condemns Attempts.
To prevent violence in this civilized and Christian community it is instantly the duty of every good law-abiding citizen to condemn these attempts to embroil the whole city in trouble.

We have peace now; we must keep it with courage and good conscience. The racial and social disturbances, the enemy, and not the defender, of the people of Atlanta, whether white or black. The public peace is in no jeopardy except from these attempts to embroil the whole city in trouble.

BRITISH ZEPPELIN, BIGGEST IN WORLD, SAILS FOR CANADA

R-100, With 36 Aboard, Is Expected To Reach Montreal Friday Morning; Weather Is Good.

CARDINGTON, England, July 28. (Tuesday).—(P)—Britain's great new air liner, R-100, biggest airship afloat, making the first trans-Atlantic flight by a British dirigible, in 11 years, soared away from her mooring mast here at 3:45 a. m. (9:45 p. m. Monday, E. S. T.) today, bound for Canada.

The start was without a hitch, the powerful Rols-Royce engines began running soon after 3 a. m., and as the starting moment approached roared deafeningly.

Then with loud cheers from a crowd that for hours has stood about watching the preparations, the mooring ropes were cast off and the airship rose rapidly and set out for Liverpool.

From there she will fly north toward the Hebrides Islands, west of Scotland, following a low pressure area north of Ireland. A cold, strong wind was blowing.

According to schedule, the R-100 should reach St. Hubert field, Montreal, sometime early Friday morning. Her course was left to the discretion of her commander, Squadron Leader E. S. Booth. He probably will take the northern great circle route, passing north of Ireland to a point south of Cape Farewell, Greenland, crossing Labrador and following the St. Lawrence river to St. Hubert field.

As the R-100 disappeared into the blue-gray western sky, a small tail light, the only one visible, indicated her course was northwest.

She carried four officers and 32 men. Close guard was maintained against aspiring stowaways. A stowaway succeeded in making the voyage aboard the R-34 in 1919. The last previous British dirigible to cross the Atlantic.

Everyone connected with the flight was confident of the big airship's powers. Officers and crew were in the highest spirits.

The R-100, Britain's challenge to Germany's supremacy in lighter-than-air craft performance, is a rigid airship of 5,000,000 cubic feet displacement.

Its general specifications follow:
Length—700 feet.
Diameter—133 feet.
Actual displacement—156 tons.
Engine power—4,200 horsepower.
Maximum speed—100 m. p. h.
Cruising speed—71.5 miles an hour.
Carrying capacity—100 passengers and mail.
Range—3,500 miles at 71.5 miles an hour, with full load.
It carries sufficient fuel for a 5,000-mile flight, with a smaller load.

SIX NEW BRIBERY CHARGES ARE LAID TO W. GUY DOBBS

Alleged Payments of P. O. Hebert Are Cited in Indictment Voted by Grand Jury.

Additional counts against Alderman W. Guy Dobbs, of the seventh ward, were voted Monday by the Fulton county grand jury in its investigation of bribes alleged to have been paid in connection with purchase by the city of fire department equipment.

Dobbs was indicted recently on a charge of receiving $100 from Lawrence Manning for using his influence as a member of council and the sanitary committee in the procuring of an order for two Elgin street sweepers at $6,681.50 each. This count was included in the new true bill as a re-indictment, and, in addition, there are six new counts against Dobbs.

The new counts charge Dobbs with receiving various sums for using his influence in the matter of purchasing fire department equipment from the Eureka Fire Hose Manufacturing Company, the American LaFrance Fire Engine Company, and the American LaFrance and Foamite Industries, Inc. The bill included an eighth count, but, through error, this count names Alderman O. H. Williamson, who was indicted Friday, as the defendant.

The second count of the indictment alleges that on October 17, 1928, Dobbs, while chairman of the board of firemasters, received $150 from P. O. Hebert, ostensibly for the purpose of attending the New Orleans, La., convention of the international fire chiefs, but really to obtain Dobbs' good will for the three fire equipment firms.

Hebert Named as "Pay-Off."
The third count charges Dobbs with receiving $300 from Hebert on November 15, 1929, ostensibly for a trip to New York, but in fact as a bribe. Similarly, the other counts charge Dobbs with receiving the following amounts for the following ostensible purposes: $50, June 1, 1927, trip to the state convention of fire chiefs, Charleston, S. C.; $150, October 1, 1928, trip to Philadelphia, Pa., for the international association of fire chiefs convention; $500, April 25, 1928, a personal loan to help buy a piece of real estate; and $350, May 3, 1929, by procuring Hebert's endorsement on Dobbs' note, then discounting it at the bank. Hebert having to pay $350 to the bank because of his liability created by the endorsement.

Alderman Williamson, of the ninth ward, and Councilman Howard U. McCutcheon, of the second ward, were indicted Friday on bribery charges growing out of Hebert's appearance before the grand jury. At the same time, Park Superintendent L. L. Wallis was indicted on bribery charges involving purchase of pack equipment.

Jurors to Meet Today.
Foreman Thomas J. Lyon, of the grand jury, said that the jurors will meet again at 10 o'clock this morning for routine matters, and that the only other meeting scheduled this week is the regular routine session on Friday.

That the grand jury will probably try to induce Solicitor General John A. Boykin to take a brief vacation and rest up after the Taylor trial was indicated by Mr. Boykin's announcement Friday on bribery charges growing out of Hebert's appearance before the grand jury. At the same time, Park Superintendent L. L. Wallis was indicted on bribery charges involving purchase of pack equipment.

Bonds of $1,000 each were posted Monday by Williamson and McCutcheon. Wallis gave a similar bond Saturday.

World's Foremost Heavyweight

W. L. (Young) Stribling, shown above, battered his way to the head of the heavyweight division in London Monday night by knocking out Phil Scott, British champion, in the first minute of the second round of a scheduled 10-round fight. All critics at the ringside acclaimed the Georgian as the finest piece of fighting machinery active today and declared that the only thing between W. L. and undisputed possession of the most coveted fighting diadem is Max Schmeling's reticence about a fight. They say that Stribling would make short work of the synthetic German titlist.

Savage Attack of Lighter Man Sends Big Foe to Canvas Four Times in First Round.

BY SIDNEY J. WILLIAMS.
United News Staff Correspondent.
WIMBLEDON STADIUM, LONDON, July 28.—Young Stribling, of Georgia, staked his claim to the world's heavyweight championship by knocking out Phil Scott, English champion, in the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout here tonight before a wild, unruly throng of 45,000 persons.

Flooding the big Englishman four times in the first round, Stribling finished the job after 2 minutes, 35 seconds of the second round with a wicked left to Scott's stomach. Referee Sam Russell counted Scott out, the Britisher rolling over as the official brought his arm down for the last stroke of 10.

Outweighed 18 pounds, Stribling was Scott's master from the moment they stepped into the ring. Scott was never able to land a single damaging blow on the lithe young Georgian who made the Englishman look like a novice as he avoided Phil's futile lunge. Stribling scored 188, Scott 206. The match, billed variously as for the "world's heavyweight championship," and the "championship of the old world," attracted perhaps the largest crowd that ever saw a glove contest in England, home of boxing. The arena was filled to capacity long before the bout, and scenes of wildest disorder were enacted as the throng continuously broke through the police barriers and rushed into the ringside section, which already were comfortably filled.

The bout started tamely enough, with each sparring the first few seconds for the opening. Stribling landed the first telling punch—a left hook to the head. Scott retaliated with a light left to the head. Stribling opened with both fists but Scott clinched. The referee moved in the two fighters apart and then Stribling went to work with both fists and soon had Scott on the floor three times before the end of the first round.

A vicious left hook to the stomach sent Scott to the floor for the first time for a count of nine. Immediately after the Englishman regained his feet, Stribling moved in and crashed another hard left hook to the mid-section which dropped Scott again for a count of nine. When Scott got to his feet after the second knock-

MacKenzie King's Gov- ernment Snowed Under by Conservatives.

TORONTO, Ont., July 28.—(P)—With returns tonight showing the election of 164 of the 245 members of the house of commons, the conservative party held a lead of 49 seats over the liberals.

The liberals lost a total of nine seats in Quebec, the independents taking one.

These losses, together with the defeat of the two ministers and further encroachments by the conservatives in the ministries, gave their opponents a substantial lead.

Five cabinet members were returned to office, the early returns disclosed, but the premier was being beaten.

Standing of the parties with 164 of the 245 seats decided:

Liberals	54

The plane is powered with a pusher 30-horsepower Siskel motor, 1,750 revolutions per minute, rigidly fixed behind the cockpit, which comprises the entire fuselage. The ship lands on three wheels, one far forward and one about midway of each wing. Rudders at the rear of each ring take the place of tail rudder.

'Borough' Census Figures Muddy Atlanta's Standing

Ohio Deckhand Saves Atlanta Woman's Life

CINCINNATI, July 28.—(AP)—A woman, registered as Miss Connie Dawnee, 24, Atlanta, Ga., was rescued today from an attempt to drown herself in the Ohio river by Tom Mullenix, deckhand on an excursion steamer. She is being held at general hospital for observation. Police said the woman admitted leaping into the river to commit suicide but refused to explain her reason. Mullenix heard the splash and caught hold of her. Police said the woman had been employed at a camp near here.

Ramspeck Suggests Court Action To Nullify Director's Report on At- lanta.

Atlanta's census standing was again "muddled" Monday when an official summary of Georgia preliminary figures, released in Washington, listed Atlanta among the principal cities as "Atlanta (borough) 286,559, increase 65,943 or 32.9 per cent."

The announcement, which included the murky explanation of Director Stewart that the figures "mean exactly what you see there," was received in Atlanta with considerable concern and brought from Representative Robert Ramspeck, fifth district member of congress, and B. S. Barker, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, statements.

"If necessary," Mr. Ramspeck said, "I think this matter should be taken to the courts and the validity of the census bureau's action tested."

Mr. Barker said that the city was pinning its hopes on the possibility that the solicitor of the census bureau would issue a legal decision reversing the Stewart ruling. Greater Atlanta's population figure of 359,688 was omitted in a list of Georgia cities given out. The figures follow:

A total population of 2,902,127 for 1930 as compared with 2,806,852 gives the state an increase of 6,295, which is the smallest percentage of gain of any state so far to report.

Martin Gets 12 to 15 Years For Slaying of Young Negro

Sealed Verdict Containing Guilty of Man- slaughter Decision Is Returned.

With T. L. Martin, first of seven white defendants to stand trial for the murder of Dennis Hubert, negro college student, under a sentence of 12 to 15 years for voluntary manslaughter, the state will call the next defendant in the Hubert case to trial early in September, Assistant Solicitor General John H. Hudson announced Monday.

The jury in Martin's case returned its sealed verdict before Judge R. E. Early Camp, of Dublin, who presided for Judge Virgil B. Moore, Monday morning. Trial of the case started last Tuesday, and ended Saturday afternoon.

Respect for law and order is the fundamental principle of civilization, Judge Camp declared. "As a native Georgian, I will insist upon full justice being done to members of both races. It is only the degenerate type of citizen that will promote racial prejudice. There are degenerate negroes and degenerate whites, but we are determined that they shall not interfere with the orderly processes of our courts."

All ballots must be in park office, Mrs. Chester Johnson, by midnight, August 1, 1936.

TWO GIRLS WITHDRAW FROM PARK CONTEST

Leader Disqualified Because of Youth; Miss Whitley Out.

On the heels of the closing of the semi-final count of ballots in the contest for selection of a queen to reign over the mammoth playground pageant planned for August 16, marking the close of the play season in Atlanta, two contestants were disqualified following a conference of executives.

Miss Juanita Moody, of Piedmont park, who led the procession last week in the first announcements, and Miss Martha Whitley, of Adair park, were the ones disqualified. The decision was announced after Councilman John A. White, chairman of the parks committee; Mrs. Chester Johnson, playground supervisor; acting Mayor G. Everett Millican and L. L. Wallis, general manager of parks and playgrounds, conferred in the mayor's office.

Miss Moody was adjudged too young, since the rules called for girls between 15 and 17. She is said to be 13. Miss Whitley was formally withdrawn by her mother, Mrs. Fred P. Whitley, who is director of activities at Adair park.

All the 28 entrants for the contest were selected by a vote of the children of the various parks they represent and the ballots at the time of the selections were counted by parents, Mrs. Johnson said.

Mrs. Whitley declared she had decided to ask that the name of her entry be withdrawn after there had been some criticism because her daughter was a contestant from her playground, Mrs. Johnson said.

Civitanian To Be Used By Jewish Alliance

Arrangements whereby Camp Civitanian, north Georgia summer retreat of the Atlanta Girl Scouts, will be turned over to the Jewish Education Alliance for the entire month of August, have been completed by the two organizations, Edward M. Kahn, director of the alliance, announced Monday.

The camp will be used for Jewish Girl Scouts with enrollments listed from Macon, Columbus, Chattanooga, Nashville and other cities of the south-east in addition to Atlanta.

The camp will be under the direction of the girls' worker of the Jewish Educational Alliance, who will be assisted by a staff of counselors to guide the activities of the girls in nature study, swimming, home nursing, hiking, pioneering and other features of campcraft, Mr. Kahn stated.

Among the counselors will be girls from Penobscot College, University of Georgia, Bryn Mawr and a number of girls' educational institutions of the southeast.

This is the first time that an entire month will be devoted to these activities at Camp Civitanian. For the past two years the alliance season has been limited to two weeks, Mr. Kahn stated. The camp is scheduled to open on August 3, and enrollment for two weeks or the entire month of August may be arranged. Further information about the special camp will be available at the alliance office, MAin 2171, the executive director said.

The camp will be under the direction of the girls' worker of the Jewish Educational Alliance, who will be assisted by a staff of counselors to guide the activities of the girls in nature study, swimming, home nursing, hiking, pioneering and other features of campcraft, Mr. Kahn stated.

Those injured were Mrs. G. A. Potter, 501 Page avenue; her two sons, Richard Potter and G. A. Potter, III; a Mrs. Carraker and her son. G. A. Potter III, suffered internal injuries which paralyzed his right side; Mrs. Carraker suffered a fractured pelvis, while other members of the party sustained minor injuries as a result of the accident, which occurred Friday night on the Jacksonville Beach road, when a large bus crashed into the rear of the machine containing the party from Atlanta, reports of the accident stated.

Negro Snatch Thief Foiled by Woman

Police Monday were searching for a negro purse-snatcher who Saturday night jumped upon the running board of an automobile, in which Mrs. Julian M. Fluker, 181 Fairview road, was a passenger, and attempted to wrest the woman's purse from her arm, while her daughter, Evelyn, started the car from its parked position on Ponce de Leon avenue near Peachtree street.

The snatch thief was beaten from the running board by his intended victim, who gave pursuit in her car down Ponce de Leon after the negro had fled. Police are in possession of a clear description of the negro.

20-Mile Foot Race Ends in Two Arrests

It was hot Monday. But Lieutenant J. M. Carroll and Patrolman Ernest Hornsby, of the Fulton county police, disregarded the heat, adopted the slogan of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, and "got their man."

Carroll and Hornsby trailed Will Brown, 30, for nearly 20 miles over Fulton county highways and byways on foot, Monday afternoon before they landed Brown and lodged him in Fulton Tower as an escaped convict from the chain gang at Winder.

The chase started on Simpson street, and, after much circling and trailing with dogs, ended on Gordon road. At county police headquarters Carroll and Hornsby sent notice to Sheriff O. H. Camp at Winder. Lieutenant Carroll said Brown was sent to the Winder gang for larceny of an automobile in Fulton county, and escaped on Friday.

Police Here 'At Sea' On Bandit Suspects

No verification of the identity of the three suspects held by Detroit police in connection with the robbery nearly two years ago of the Tenth street branch of the Citizens and Southern National Bank had been received Monday by Chief of Police James L. Beavers, it was said late in the afternoon.

Chief Beavers Sunday received telegraphic advice from Detroit that a trio of men believed to have been involved in the robbery of the branch bank had been taken in custody and the local police head immediately wired details of the hold-up, in which about $10,000 was obtained, and a description of the men wanted.

Humphries Supporters Meet At Ansley This Afternoon

Judge Issues Statement On Race for Re-election to Fulton Superior Court Bench.

Friends and supporters interested in the reelection of Judge John D. Humphries as judge of Fulton superior court have arranged a meeting and rally for Wednesday afternoon in the civic room on the first floor of the Ansley hotel, commencing at 4:30 o'clock. Everyone interested in the reelection of Judge Humphries, ladies especially, is invited to be present. An address will be made by William Schley Howard and short speeches delivered by others. It is expected that a large attendance will be at the meeting, which it is said will last about an hour and a quarter. Marion Smith, prominent Atlanta lawyer, will preside. Judge Humphries Monday issued a statement in which he outlined his conception of the importance of the judicial position he seeks reelection to. The statement follows: "Humphries' Statement. 'To the People of Fulton County (Atlanta Judicial Circuit): "Having heretofore announced that I would be a candidate to succeed myself as judge of Fulton superior court, I am qualified before the closing date of the required entrance fee and notifying the primary authorities of an intention to make the race. "The only possible issue that can be made in a contest for any judgeship is that of judicial fitness. The fitness in the mass law interested only in the character and ability of the person to be selected at the ballot box. It is in fact the personal equation that counts somewhat into the matter and as to that I felicitate myself that I am blessed with a host of personal friends in the circuit who are very near and dear to me. "The judgeship of a superior court, and particularly that of the Atlanta circuit, where among other things the but is for you to endorse a candidate by the vote you cast. The record I have made in the years during which you have permitted me to serve you is an open book. It is my own and I am responsible for it. I am now the senior judge of your superior court, my earlier colleagues, Judges John T. Pennington, William D. Ellis, Sr., and George J. Bell, having gone to their reward. I have an abiding faith in the people, in their ability and inclination to think straight and to act wisely in matters where their courts are involved and with a clear conscience I present my cause to them in the confidence that by their votes shall be returned to office at the September primary. "JOHN D. HUMPHRIES."

WEEK-END CRASHES TAKE HEAVY TOLLS

Deaths due to motor accidents in Atlanta over the week-end assumed the major contribution to Georgia's eight automobile fatalities from Saturday to Monday. During that period three persons were killed, eight were injured and six motorists figuring in accidents here were jailed. Throughout the state eight persons met death in motor mishaps from Saturday through Monday, while a Georgian woman died in an accident that occurred in Florida. Struck while she was about to enter her parents' car, parked across the street from the Baptist Tabernacle, where she had attended the cradle class, 2-year-old Doris Ann Lee, of 153 Howard street, Kirkwood, was almost instantly killed Sunday; another 2-year-old child, Eddie Shaw, negro, of 315 Fraser street, was killed in front of his home, and Bob Kendrick, motorcycle racer, lost his life in a crash with a parked automobile at Boulevard and Confederate avenue. Eight are injured.

JOHN D. HUMPHRIES.

legal business of the state itself is tried in one of the highest offices in the gift of the people. This court is a constitutional part of general and original jurisdiction, trying and deciding, with or without a jury, cases up to and including capital cases on the criminal side and civil litigation up to any amount of money or value, in any, of all inferior courts, writes of certiorari. Its judge, under our law, sits as chancellor in equity, and as such hears and determines all cases in equity. These law proceedings must originate in the superior court except such cases wherein exclusive jurisdiction is vested in the federal courts. His judgments and decrees may be reviewed by the supreme court or the court of appeals of Georgia, depending upon the nature of the case. Conception of Position.

"The above condensed statement gives some general idea of the importance of the office and, as a consequence, the seriousness with which the voter should approach the matter as he prepares his ballot and registers his will at the polls. "It may be a matter of interest to the people if I here and now briefly outline my own conception of an acceptable judge of the superior court. First, he should be well grounded in the principles of the English common law and of the statute law of his state and this can be accomplished only by constant application and a wide and varied personal experience in the actual practice of law that is in the preparation and trial of cases in all the courts. Of course it is of great advantage to have had prior judicial experience. He should think in terms of the law, and be able at once to determine whether citations by counsel of decisions of appellate courts are applicable or inapplicable to the case on trial or the particular point under consideration. In proceedings in equity, where oft-times he is vested with wide discretion, he should exercise that discretion wisely, soundly and sanely and make his findings accord with what is right in the case. The judge should during all sessions of the court maintain and cause to be preserved the order and decorum compatible with the dignity of the tribunal over which he presides the better to secure justice for the litigants whose personal liberty or substantial property rights may be involved.

Record Is Open. "When a case is called and the trial commenced he should then and there free his mind from the personnel of the parties, their counsel, the witnesses, and the jury. To the judge the trial should be in all respects 'a case' and whether those interested in the result be rich or poor; a great corporation or the man who works with his hands, he should give the utmost of his mind, heart and conscience to the end that substantial justice may be accorded; the parties, under the law, and that verdicts and judgments may speak the truth and finally, but by no means last, a judge should be a correct man in his private life, free from bigotry or arrogance; walking uprightly before his fellow-man and at all times and in all acts holding himself accountable to the Great Judge whose decrees are from everlasting to everlasting. "To what extent I have approached these precepts is not for me to say.

Villages Wrecked by 'Quake To Be Rebuilt by Winter

New Towns Will Rise in Valleys Rather Than on More Dangerous Hill-sides.

BY THOMAS B. MORGAN, United News Staff Correspondent.

NAPLES, Italy, July 28.—(UN)—Reconstruction of the earthquake-devastated regions before winter is the plan on which the government's engineers will begin work as soon as they have completed a survey of requirements.

New towns will replace the old, and the modern villages will be built in the valleys instead of on the hills. That lesson, at least, has been learned by this experience. Furthermore, the new buildings will be earthquake-proof, of reinforced concrete construction—and two-story houses modern in style, similar to those at Avezzano, which was rebuilt in 1915 and has resisted all shocks since.

The population at present is being cared for in temporary huts and tents. The huts are portable. They are similar to those used behind the front in the war, and are quite suitable during the warm summer months. The government's plan is to push reconstruction on a large scale. It is amusing to hear the peasants give various pronouncements of the names of American cities like Montclair, N. J., Lorain, Ohio, Youngstown, Ohio, and Wheeling, W. Va., which sound quite different when pronounced by the Italians. Many inhabitants of Sossio, San Nicola and the Treviso section have relatives in Boston and Newark, N. J., while New York, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Chicago are frequently mentioned. At Villanova, Rocco Colantoni, who was killed together with his wife and four children, has a brother in men at the head of relief and reconstruction work want to have complete new towns built on new sites to replace Villanova, Aquilona, Montecarlo, Sossio and much of Ariano, Lacedonia and Melfi.

Relief supply trains were concentrating today at San Angelo Dei Lombardi, which is brimful of activity. An evacuation hospital serving three zones and a large field hospital are functioning in military fashion. Hospital trains convey the injured to Naples and Rome as soon as the wounded can be evacuated. Good roads reach most points in the stricken area now, bridges have been restored in most places, and the entire region shaken by Wednesday's quake has been said to have been given efficient relief.

Hardly a family in the stricken region is without some connection in the United States. It is amusing to hear the peasants give various pronouncements of the names of American cities like Montclair, N. J., Lorain, Ohio, Youngstown, Ohio, and Wheeling, W. Va., which sound quite different when pronounced by the Italians. Many inhabitants of Sossio, San Nicola and the Treviso section have relatives in Boston and Newark, N. J., while New York, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Chicago are frequently mentioned. At Villanova, Rocco Colantoni, who was killed together with his wife and four children, has a brother in

Not a bran-food. Any normal person can eat HEINZ Rice Flakes daily for a lifetime with only good results. Both children and adults thrive on them, and in most instances greatly improve in regularity of health-habits. Your doctor knows.

Patented by HEINZ, you get this great benefit and rare attraction in HEINZ CEREALS ONLY!

Eat twice daily for one week to start the benefits; once daily thereafter to maintain them. Your money back from any grocer if not completely satisfactory both as to flavor and effects. Send post card for free booklet, "Children's Futures Told in Foods" with sections about adults needs. Address H. J. Heinz Co., Pittsburgh (Dept. R-7), sole makers of this new triumph in foods.

Children can't resist the flavor so they don't resist the benefits. Try yours and see.

COMING HOME TO ROOST.

When six nations in Europe decide to limit the importation into them of foreign built automobiles to an insignificant quota, every one with as much brains as a gnat knows that the action is taken against the United States. Half of the number of automobiles now in use in Europe were made in the United States. Only a few were made in England and none, as far as reported from any other country of the globe.

The contention of our government officials in Washington that the drastic quota fixed for cheap cars is "in no wise a reprisal for the new American tariff law" is insane and futile dodging of the facts in the case. There was no thought or hint in France, Germany, Belgium, Italy, Austria and Czechoslovakia of a practical embargo against automobile importations until this country adopted the Hoover-Grundy tariff act. The claim at Washington that the embargo is against other countries as much as against the United States will not go far in face of the fact that it practically affects this country as the only one that is exporting the mass of the cars marketed in the countries laying the embargo.

The six nations' embargo is figured to put a penalty of $100,000,000 at the least upon American car builders, for the loss of which they can thank, if they will, the Hoover-Grundy tariff law. If the Hoover-Grundy tariff law is not a reprisal against this country they would be hard put to explain what form a real reprisal would take. Certainly if we should put an embargo on the white elephants of the world the people of Siam would be justified in calling it a reprisal against their chief product.

The unvarnished truth is that the Hoover-Grundy tariff seriously affects the opportunities of the six nations in particular to trade in American markets, and very naturally they have taken action in reprisal and in a way to defend themselves. The effect is manifestly the same as if they had declared open tariff war against the United States.

Their action strikes a heavy and costly blow at one of our greatest and most profitable industries, for the automobile factories of the United States are among the largest employers of capital, materials and labor in this country. Their prosperity is an almost vital element making for the general national prosperity.

So that when six so important European nations, eager customers heretofore of our automobile products, suddenly shut down upon their importations by quota and prohibitive tariff duties they are only matching the effects of the Hoover-Grundy "hog-in-the-trough" tariff law of this country upon their own industries. Veritably the Hoover-Grundy bred chickens are coming home to roost and are bringing with them other chickens to consume our valuable trade victuals.

It is clearly up now to President Hoover and his tariff tinkers to explain to the people that such shut-out actions as those of the six nations are "in nowise to be considered reprisal" against their unusual and unjust tariff law.

Between now and election day there may be other such actions from abroad to invoke the ingenious dodging of the Hoover-Grundy administration.

July 14.

That gentleman in Italy, who recently expressed the opinion that machine guns and bayonets and airplanes are more beautiful than words, could have witnessed a spectacle to delight his heart had he been present in Paris on July 14. The battleflags of France were carried through the Arch of Triumph in the annual parade to commemorate the fall of the Bastille that day. Ten thousand bayonets, like some living, gleaming forest, surrounded that same old triangle of the revolution, which had been the herald of brotherhood and equality to Europe and of kings and tyrants in the towers of kings and tyrants.

The cavalry, thundering, flashed its swords in salute and as a pledge to the unknown under the arch. Fifty Algerian sheiks, allies of the republic, all bearers of the grand crosses of the legion of honor, followed by 500 white-robed desert warriors, stood in the saddle when they espied the shrunken figure of Marshal Lyautey, "the builder of the Moroccan empire." Then came the cannons, an endless procession of brand-new monster guns, which had to stick to the broad Champs Elysees as they could not maneuver through the narrow side streets. The guns made the Parisians alternately cheer and look on in silent amazement. Your Parisian knows a gun when he sees one. The thunderous rhythm of the march, swept by, rifles lying back in even windrows. And when the cymbals crashed forth so that the houses shook and the thunderous rhythm of the march, swept by, rifles lying back in even windrows. And when the cymbals crashed forth so that the houses shook and the thunderous rhythm of the march, swept by, rifles lying back in even windrows.

There is no civilized country that is less competently policed than the United States. Other nations unify their police systems, divorce them from all political attachments, and give them centralized control and co-ordinated operations. In this country we have 49 state and District of Columbia law enforcement systems and in nearly every organized community an independent police force wholly locally controlled.

In the primary matter of quick apprehension of perpetrators of crime there is a general ignorance of detective methods and lack of skill. The Rothstein and many other flagrant murders in New York City have not been solved years after their commission. Chicago is crowded with unapprehended murderers, and Atlanta has several notorious major murders that are yet profound and unsolved mysteries. The whole country suffers from such police inadequacy and the statement comes from reliable criminal research sources that there are now 100,000 mankillers at large in these United States.

The attorneys-general do not hesitate to find that courts and prosecuting officers are responsible for the almost universal lagardness in bringing criminals to the bar and before juries. The reasons for the delays are as plentiful as blackberries and, except in very rare cases, none of them are valid reasons.

Criminal justice needs to be so organized by law as to compel prosecutors to speed their prosecutions and to make it obligatory upon courts to prefer criminal trials to all others and to allow only the most imperative postponements. The greatest and safest defense the flagrant criminal has is the ability his lawyers have to influence the court and keep him from having to submit to trial.

Certainty of punishment is a strong deterrent to the criminally inclined, especially to those tempted to their first criminal adventure. It is the current belief that the crime can be done and the criminal "get away with it," that leads many to try the experiment, for a first crime is always an experiment.

These findings of the law officers of the states are worthy to be studied all over the Union by those who make the laws and those who are charged with their execution. It will be a sad day in our history when society feels an urge to protect itself from its chosen protectors.

In the death of Charles C. Brantley, editor of the Valdosta Times for 30 years and progressive citizen in other lines of service, the journalism of Georgia loses a steady luminary and the state a devoted and helpful son.

Mr. Brantley early embraced the newspaper profession and gave to it the strength of a clear, keen mind and the power of a patriotic and forward-marching spirit. His contributions to the faith and upbuilding of the people of South Georgia in particular were valuable and influential, rendering him popular esteem and fixing his place as a foremost citizen of that region.

But his fine powers were not confined to their activities to his provincial area. They were felt by his colleagues of the press and by the leaders of the state at large. He gave earnest study to the needs of agriculture, to the establishment and promotion of other industries, and he was especially concerned always for the right conduct of state affairs, that the dignity and expansion of Georgia might not unduly suffer.

Genial, sympathetic and appreciative, Mr. Brantley occupied a distinguished place in public confidence and enjoyed the assurance that his fellow-citizens held him in high esteem and friendship. His lamentable passing from among them will cause statewide sorrow. His memory will be treasured as that of a true man and an exemplary citizen.

Something Else Again About the Future of State Finances.

The review of the state's financial condition by Governor Hardman has not inspired much enthusiasm and popular contentment throughout the state. The governor presents the predicament as he sees it, but manifestly of the few of the state and put Georgia on solid unimpaired financial feet.

Brickmakers Without Straw. Our very excellent five fellow-citizens are each of them assuring the people that if he is elected governor he will pay up the back debts of the state and put Georgia on solid unimpaired financial feet.

None of them has to the sufficient creditors—the bankers, school teachers and others—what he proposes to do the paying with! How is he going to make his bricks without straw? Page Pharaoh! The reverse laws of the state will not produce the money. The constitution forbids the creation of state debts, except for purposes that do not involve the state in litigation and the defense of the state from invasion.

Yet the debts exist and the ways and means to pay them must be found. Who among the candidates has yet presented a workable plan to return the state to solvency?

A Dangerous Measure Brewing. Far more dangerous to the future good of the state is the Lankford constitutional amendment, submitted by the last legislature, and to be voted upon in November.

The object of that amendment is stated to be to give authority to the general assembly to levy an income tax all.

But that object is no longer necessary since the supreme court of the state has decided with unanimous voice that the general assembly has that right. That is a fact that every man who understands the constitution knows has existed ever since the document was ratified in 1877.

It was successfully argued before the legislature that then went on, after enacting an income tax law, to submit this unnecessary amendment.

Tying the State Up Again. The real purpose of the amendment is to tie the hands of the state again as was done in the Terrell amendment that limited the ad valorem tax rate not to exceed five mills.

This Lankford amendment provides that no income tax shall be levied that exceeds five per cent. That is in the direct interest of the big rich income receivers. It would absolutely prevent one of the great objectives of income taxation, which is the graduation of the tax according to the magnitude of the incomes. It is dead against the interest of the state and of the smaller income receivers.

That amendment ought to be smashed without benefit of clergy!

TWO CASES OF CHRONIC RUNNING EAR AND MASTOIDITIS.

A woman 62 years old had had a running ear since an attack of scarlet fever in childhood. In the last few years she had had earaches at times when the discharge was suppressed. The discharge had a foul odor and was very profuse. She kept the ear plugged with cotton to protect her clothing and bed clothing from being soiled by the discharge. # Mr. and Mrs. Gladhand Are Vacationing at Their Summer Cottage at the Lakes

BY ROBERT QUILLLEN

Failure feeds on itself like a vice.

To fail often is not only to develop the habit of failure but to acquire the traits that insure failure.

The victim of tuberculosis must keep a cheerful mind if he would get well, but his misfortune makes difficult the very thing on which his care depends.

The ignorant man has no hope except in education, yet his lack of it makes him incapable of realizing his need.

The stupid and the foolish are doomed to remain as they are because their handicap binds them to the fact that they are unlike their normal neighbors.

The dog, having a dog's mind, can't worry about being a dog.

The failure is doomed to remain a failure because failure itself develops a suspicion and a bitterness that close the door to success.

The man who has failed many times and yet has kept his faith in humanity and a mind free of bitterness is not a failure at all but merely an unhappy man who has suffered reverses.

The hopeless failure is one who thinks himself whipped and tries to save his pride by pretending the fault is not his.

"Other men succeed where I failed," he says, "which is proof that they are tricksters. If my honesty got me nowhere, it is obvious that their success is proof of dishonesty."

That pretense soothes his vanity, but in time he learns to believe it and then his case is hopeless.

He is suspicious of everybody and bitterly resentful of everybody's success, and every time he expresses his suspicion and bitterness he makes himself more of a failure.

The world knows he is a failure, for only failures feel as he does; and it refuses him another chance because the man soured by failure is certain to fail again.

His chance to come back is to hide his spanked-boy resentment and assume the cheerful grin of a winner.

To make the world forget you're a loser, you must quit knocking the man who won.

was cheered enthusiastically as he left the ring.

Stribling justified the betting odds 10 to 1 which were quoted on him before he entered the ring. Even though Ma Schmelzing is recognized in some quarters as heavyweight champion, he believed that he had a better chance of winning than he had of losing.

Stribling's viciousness amazed the house crowd. The dark-haired Georgia boy never gave Scott a second's rest from the moment he went to work on him in earnest with both fists in the first round. Only the bell saved Scott from a knockout in the first round.

Following closely on his one-round knockout of Otto Von Porat at Chicago June 18, Stribling has been called a contender for the title of Gene Tunney's title. The only real defeat in his record is the decision he lost to Jack Sharkey at Miami, Fla., two years ago when he entered the ring hampered by an attack of neuritis in his arm.

Stribling has never been knocked out and has more than 100 knockouts to his credit.

conclusive agreement to that end, and that although Beall as a grand juror knew of the alleged offense, the rest of the grand jurors and the state did not know of it.

Arnold contended that the grand jurors were sworn to prosecute any offense which might have come to their knowledge prior to service on the grand jury. Judge Moore, however, pointed out that he charged the grand jury with prosecution of matters brought to their attention or coming to their knowledge during their service on the grand jury.

Where Arnold claimed that the city was the one which it was charged had been robbed and that the city had notice of the alleged crime because Beall was in council and on the police committee, Boykin argued that the city had nothing to do with the prosecution, that the bribery was an offense against the state.

Approached After Indictment. Beall, a former member of council from the second ward, testified that in 1923, when he had a soda stand and office in the Grant building, Taylor came to him and behind closed doors, said he was "authorized" to pay $400 for favorable action on the pool room license. Beall said he refused to consider the matter. Under cross-examination, Arnold brought out that Taylor's previous trial Beall testified that Taylor did not make an offer, but said he was "authorized" to pay.

Asked by the solicitor-general if he knew the difference between an offer and a tender, Beall replied that Taylor had offered him $400, and that he had refused it.

Beall testified that Taylor approached him after Taylor's indictment, and reproached him for being a "friend" and sitting by and saying nothing in his behalf before the grand jury. Beall said that Taylor threatened to send the rest of his life "getting you fellows in trouble."

When Beall testified that three men approached him at his garage, near Taylor's home, and it was brought out that the defendant was not present, a councilman cannot be considered to disregard that portion of the testimony.

The first move of the defense Monday after issue was joined, was to present a demurrer attacking the indictment on the grounds that the office of councilman is not one that can involve bribery, that the penal code section 270 does not define a mere offer of money as bribery, and that although section 271 does define an offer as bribery in the case of a state official, a councilman cannot be considered to disregard that portion of the testimony.

Solicitor-General Boykin was ready to argue the demurrer, but Judge Moore overruled the defense by stating that he had ruled previously on the same point, and cited the Payne case to show that city officials are considered as state officers. Judge Moore declared that both sections of the code must be taken together or there would be no law governing bribery in Georgia.

Jesse W. Armistead, former councilman and member of the police committee, followed Beall on the stand. Armistead testified as to the paper concerning the poolroom license, and said that although adverse action had been taken by the police committee, it was adopted by council after a speech made by Alderman Claude L. Ashley.

Armistead said, under cross-examination, that he had been in "outs" with Taylor since 1916 when he ran for mayor. Asked if he hated Taylor, Armistead replied "No." Arnold then asked: "But you dislike him?"

"Yes," Armistead said.

"And he dislikes you?"

"Yes."

Armistead further testified that he and Taylor had not shaken hands since 1916, although at one time they had begun speaking to one another when they met, following an offer of assistance by Taylor in Armistead's aldermanic race, an offer he said he refused.

Armistead said that he had opposed issuing the license for the poolroom at 60 Walton street.

Armistead said, one of the poolroom owners, testified to sending Jacob to Taylor in regard to securing the license, and said that Taylor wanted $500 but later agreed on $300. Phil said they tried three times to obtain a license, and after Taylor for finally agreed to help, it was put through council.

Morris Israel said he went to meet Jacob with Phil.

Assistant Solicitor-General J. Walter LeCraw read the testimony of Taylor in the previous trial of Taylor, on agreement by the defense. This testimony told of the alleged delivery of the money to Taylor for Phil, Amiel and Israel, and said that Taylor at first asked for $500 but later agreed to take $300. Jacob could not attend court, being in the hospital.

Tuggle Testimony Read. The testimony of Frank L. Tuggle in the previous trial also was read. Remaining indictments against Taylor will wait for the October term of court, it was said. The state has agreed to a continuance on an indictment charging extortion in connection with the recent city annexation proposal. The defense asked for continuance of the grand jury, but it was not ready on the extortion indictment.

The indictment charging Taylor with attempting to bribe Jacob went out of the councilman's testimony at Taylor's former trial. Beall was called before the grand jury and the indictment resulted.

Taylor has appealed his conviction on a bribery charge to the state court of appeals. He was sentenced to serve one year and pay a fine of $1,000 following conviction on a charge of receiving $500 from Marvin Roome to aid in influencing council to pave West Peachtree street.

The jury selected Monday to try the present case follows:

J. R. Holloway, 1035 Kentucky avenue, an employee of W. C. Roome, George W. Wentz, baker, 838 North street.

R. C. Blair, 1546 Gordon street.

S. W. C. Verlander, 546 Peoples street, a night rate clerk with the Southern Railway

SLATON SAYS HARRIS REVERSES ON LEAGUE

Declares Senior Senator Has "Completely Abandoned Former Convictions."

STATESBORO, Ga., July 28.—(Special).—Speaking here today to a large audience of citizens representing Bulloch and adjoining counties, former Governor John M. Slaton, candidate for the senate in opposition to Senator Harris, severely scored the senator for "reversing his position on the League of Nations."

"Senator Harris came back to Georgia and opened his campaign at Dublin today by reversing his position on the League of Nations," said Mr. Slaton.

"Nothing could be more typical of our distinguished senator than this death-bed repentance. When the League of Nations before the senate and President Wilson held the reins of power in his hands, Senator Harris voted for and ardently advocated our entrance into the League of Nations. When he was running for re-election six years ago, he assured the admirers of Mr. Wilson that he was still in favor of entering the league, and he received enough support to give him another term in the senate."

"But now that advocacy of entering the league on any terms at all appears to him to be politically inexpedient, he completely abandons his former deep convictions concerning our duty to entangle ourselves in foreign complications, and turns his back not only upon his convictions, but upon those who were supporting him because of his convictions—or what they thought were his convictions."

"If the senator keeps up the pace he started in his opening speech at Dublin, what will he have left in his senatorial record that he hasn't repudiated before the campaign is over?"

"What is he going to say next about the World Court? He tried to dodge that issue a few weeks ago by saying the World Court was dead. Then President Hoover announced his intention to bring the court before the senate for a second consideration and vote when congress reconvenes. Senator Harris promptly trimmed his sails and said the court came up again in the senate, if he was still there, he would vote to enter it on terms amounting, in substance, to this:

"That the United States shall furnish the World Court one judge, paying his salary and maintaining him in luxury, he to vote on all questions before the court affecting other nations, but none of the judges, not even our own, to vote on any questions affecting the United States. What could be more preposterous, more farcical?"

"I wonder how long the senator will stick to that position? Will he cling to it until the court reserves its opinion, upholding them as a matter of conviction and principle, or will he abandon them and abandon the court, as he has at last abandoned his league reservations and the league itself?"

After speaking at Statesboro, Governor Slaton left for Metter, where he was to speak tonight.

Record of Service Outlined by Perry

SANDERSVILLE, Ga., July 28.—(Special).—In a speech here today during the noon recess of court, James A. Perry, candidate for governor, declared the race to be between himself, George H. Carswell and John N. Holder.

In answer to recent charges of Holder that Perry had rendered no service to the state, the speaker outlined his record briefly.

"To those familiar with the race for governor," Perry declared, "it is generally accepted that it is between Mr. Holder, Mr. Carswell and myself. I know what it means to tackle the powerful influence of the special interests, but I measured the distance before I started, actuated solely to give the people a chance to vote for a man who has no political ambition to satisfy and no enemies to persecute. I am asking no quarters in this campaign, but have cheerfully taken the side of the people in this fight and wherever they have understood the issues in this campaign they have quickly and cheerfully adopted me as the strongest candidate to get rid of the influence referred to."

"I have no campaign headquarters, except a volunteer committee, representing the citizens of Gwinnett county, who are giving me splendid help from my home town of Lawrenceville, under the name of the Perry-Gwinnett campaign committee. Campaign headquarters is of no interest to the people. Chiefly the purpose they serve is to hatch selfish legislation and usually as a means of reimbursing those contributing to the expense. I am not carrying on any better writing campaign, as practice no longer serving any useful purpose. I am reaching the voters through the medium of the press, as it puts the matter out in the open and the people countenance the heavy expense of such headquarters. The people are going to have to take this matter in their own hands and exercise a business judgment, void of animosities and hatred, such as exists between Mr. Holder and Mr. Carswell."

"Mr. Holder complains that I have rendered no service at any time to the people of this state. Will he say that to have initiated the plan that has made possible the $4,000,000 cold storage plant on our railroad property at the old depot site in Atlanta; the erection of a $600,000 passenger station on our railroad property in Atlanta; the bringing of natural gas to this state; the reduction in freight rates of $48,000,000; the reduction of light and power rates to the amount of $2,500,000; the reduction in rate to the gas consuming public; $2,000,000 reduction in telephone rates; providing rates at all railroad points in Georgia the same in the smaller communities as in the larger cities and cities rated in the same manner for electric light service, is of no service to the people of the state? Anyway, I give the foregoing as answers to his incorrect statement. The only thing I have rendered to the people of Georgia is to show up one George Carswell in his true light."

"One of my neighbors who had been greatly benefited by Sargon advised me to try it, and I want to say that this remarkable medicine not only relieved all my suffering, but renewed my health and strength, gave me a splendid appetite and I've gained five pounds."

"Sargon Pills stimulated my bowels to regular, normal action and seemed to clear my system of toxic poisons without distressing me at all. I just can't find words to express my gratitude to this wonderful treatment."

Sargon may be obtained at all Jacobs' Pharmacies.—(adv.)

It elected governor, Carswell promised to drive away paid lobbyists and influences from the doors of Georgia legislative halls. He said that he would be an inmate to say anything against Governor Hardin inasmuch as he was appointed secretary of state by Hardin. However, Hardin is not guilty of all the things that Russell and Rivers have charged him with. The speaker said that Russell as speaker of the house and Rivers as a member of the senate could have done more toward curing Georgia's ills while in the assembly than being governor inasmuch as a governor hasn't anything to do with introducing legislation.

JIM THE CONQUEROR

By PETER B. KYNE

Thirty-Second Installment.

Don Prudencio Alvisio might have looked sleepy, but behind those slightly lidded eyes he was very wide awake. He knew there were a few thousand culls in that lot of sheep—old ewes with wrinkled necks, and ewes without teeth, old stags that were merely boards, mixed breeds of uncertain sizes and ages. Consequently, when for both aged sheep and lambs he had received so cavalier and tempting an offer he did not hesitate. Within ten minutes he had William B. Latham sewed up on a contract of purchase and sale, and with this signal advantage, if, for any reason, it was considered undesirable for the estate to go through with the sale, it could get out of the contract, while for the purchaser there could be no escape, even though he should change his mind, provided the court approved Don Prudencio's action as executor.

When Crooked Bill had the contract safely tucked in his pocket he commenced talking with Don Prudencio about the deceased Tom Antrim, and learned that for a few days following Antrim's death the sheep had remained in charge of one Bill Dingle, Antrim's foreman. Later Dingle had been rather forcibly relieved of his charges by Jaime Higuera, of the Rancho Valle Verde.

"That Dingle might be a good experienced shepherdman to care for these sheep in case the court approves the sale," Crooked Bill suggested hopefully. "Where might one get in touch with him?"

Don Prudencio gave him minute directions for finding Mr. Dingle, and with a heart beating high with hope Crooked Bill took his departure.

"I'll sell the dog-eared sheep to Dingle, and take a chunk of money, and if he hasn't got enough money to pay for them—and I dare say he hasn't," the old schemer decided. "Of course I'm bound to lose some money, but then I expected that, and I can pay for my fancies. Well tomorrow I'll hire a car and driver and he'll come to see those sheep off on Bill Dingle. I'll give that fellow a bargain he just naturally won't have the heart to refuse. Then I'll get an airplane to freight me back home in a hurry, because I mustn't waste any time with that Higuera fellow always on the job. Once home, I'll write Roberta I'm very ill and to come home immediately. After that—the deluge."

For a long time after Crooked Bill had left his office Don Prudencio Alvisio sat in his swivel-chair and stared hard at the opposite wall. Presently he took down the telephone and called the proprietor of the Mansion House and with him held a conversation in Spanish. Then he hung up and waited for the telephone to ring and Don Prudencio answered, "Gracias." He hung up and wrote on a scratch pad the initials W. B. L. Thereafter he continued to stare at the wall for another hour. About sunset he shook his large black head in negation and defeat and went home.

The following night he appeared at the Rancho Valle Verde. Roberta was dressing for dinner, after a day in the saddle with Don Jaime and his men, and Don Jaime was lying in his long chair on the gallery, with Ken Hobart beside him.

"Hello, Prudy, what brings you out?" Don Jaime hailed him.

"I am mystified," Don Prudencio replied, and forthwith related in detail his impending sale of the Antrim sheep to a fat-headed old gentleman who was a very great deal more than he was worth.

"He said his name was Blodgett, and signed the contract William L. Blodgett," the lawyer continued. "He did not say where he was from, but I could see he knew nothing of sheep and was a city man. His hands were soft and white and his shirt was too expensive. He did not bargain with me and he seemed to me to be quite too anxious to buy the sheep. So I telephoned to the Mansion House to inquire if he was stopping there and when I described him they said that had a guest there from New York by that name, but that his baggage carried the initials W. B. L."

"Hum-m-m!" Don Jaime grunted and sat up very straight. "He isn't a very good liar, is he? Any fool in this country would have known better than to leave a trail like that. What does W. B. L. stand for, New York?"

"That's all I know," Don Prudencio said. "I don't know what the initials stand for, but I don't think so much of your old Uncle Bill, either."

"This statement, when there was not apparently any reason why Uncle Bill should ever be the subject of thought, was the final feather that broke the back of Roberta's curiosity. "Jim," she pleaded, "would you care to save a human life?"

"Some humans. You, for instance," Don Jaime said. "The fellow who has lowered my innocent Uncle Bill in your estimation."

"He's crooked," Don Prudencio said. (Copyright 1930, for The Constitution.)

"That's none of your business, and besides, if he were, Jim, you couldn't expect me to discuss the subject with you. Why has he been selling you about Glenn Hackett?"

"The fairies," Don Jaime replied enigmatically. And though Roberta pressed him to tell her more and employed feminine wiles to break down his resolve not to, he refused, and in the end, incensed at the failure of her powers, Roberta lapsed into a somewhat sullen silence. As they alighted at the hacienda the outrageous man still further mystified her by saying:

"And I don't think so much of your old Uncle Bill, either."

"That's none of your business, and besides, if he were, Jim, you couldn't expect me to discuss the subject with you. Why has he been selling you about Glenn Hackett?"

"The fairies," Don Jaime replied enigmatically. And though Roberta pressed him to tell her more and employed feminine wiles to break down his resolve not to, he refused, and in the end, incensed at the failure of her powers, Roberta lapsed into a somewhat sullen silence. As they alighted at the hacienda the outrageous man still further mystified her by saying:

"And I don't think so much of your old Uncle Bill, either."

"This statement, when there was not apparently any reason why Uncle Bill should ever be the subject of thought, was the final feather that broke the back of Roberta's curiosity. "Jim," she pleaded, "would you care to save a human life?"

"Some humans. You, for instance," Don Jaime said. "The fellow who has lowered my innocent Uncle Bill in your estimation."

Crackers Battle Fourteen Innings But Lose to Vols, 13 to 12

SCOTT COMPLETELY OUTCLASSED BY STRIBLING

CRACKERS LOSE TO VOLS, 13-12, IN 14 INNINGS

Jim Poole Ends Game With Home Run Over Fence.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 28.—Jim Poole's thirty-seventh home run of the season, floating lazily over the rightfield fence in the fourteenth inning, brought a dramatic finish to the longest game that has been played in the new Nashville ball park and gave the Vols a fortunate 13-to-12 victory over the Crackers today in the first game of the series.

After the fray had seen-sawed from the seventh frame, Poole slapped the first ball pitched out of the lot and brought to naught the gallant work that had been displayed by the veteran Red O'Leary, who in addition to silencing the Vol bats, singled in the thirteenth to drive in what appeared to be the winning run. However, a free pass, followed by two hits enabled the Rowlandites to dead-lock the score in their half.

Jay Partridge's first homer of the day knocked Bunny Hearn off the mound in the seventh and he was relieved by Andy Chambers, the University of Georgia product, who fared no better, allowing four hits and four runs. It was old Red O'Leary who stopped the Vols, but he didn't stop 'em long enough.

Entering the battle in the ninth, the veteran portlander permitted only two singles until Poole's fatal blow in the fourteenth.

MATES BANG. Meanwhile, his mates banged out seven safeties during this extra-inning period. But thanks to some fancy fielding by Adams and Partridge, one lone run was netted from this crop of hits. Sparky and Jay made wonderful grabs of line drives for the final out in the eleventh and twelfth innings. And this same pair saved the day for Rowland with the circuit clouts, the former's coming in the ninth to tie the score.

The Dohbys jumped off to an early lead on the seventh, when ahead 8 to 4. In the seventh, when Partridge slammed a homer with two on and John Anderson followed with another.

Nashville added two in the eighth and it looked like the game would end peacefully when they entered the ninth with this advantage. But singles by Rosenthal and Shirley, Lamotte's double and Luke Appling's one-bagger to left pushed the Crax out in front, only to fall back in a dead heat when Adams fired his shot over the wall.

GREAT CHANCE. Atlanta had a wonderful chance to win the game after O'Leary had put them out in front by his timely single in the thirteenth.

The first two Vols were retired easily, but Bill Moore, swinging for Zumbro, was walked, and Otto Dumas followed with his fifth hit of the day. Lamotte's double and Luke Appling's one-bagger to left, which sent Moore to third, Dumas taking second on the throw-in. Then Blackie Carter posted one between short and third, of which Bobby Lamotte made a marvelous grab, but his throw to Shirley was a bit wide. Carter beat Moore, Moore scoring the tying runner.

Thirty players were used in the game that lasted three hours and fifteen minutes.

"STRIBLING WINS KNOCKOUT SECOND ROUND." That was the flash that came over the cables from London interrupting the running detail of blows.

It told in crisp directness that William Lawrence Stribling II, of Georgia, had knocked out Phil Scott, the champion heavyweight of England, in two rounds and had leaped to the forefront of the challengers for the crown precariously balanced on the black brow of Max Schmeling, the German.

THE MAN BEHIND THE FIGHTER.

Somehow my thoughts flashed back to a hotel room in New York on July 3. I sat there talking with Pa Stribling just before he and W. L. sailed for England to fight Phil Scott.

The chubby little man from south Georgia was in a vast hurry. He had come on to New York to attend to a few items of business before taking ship. He had put in a long distance call to Chicago, where he has a tentative date in September. He had called a couple of officials of Madison Square Garden. He was trying to get hold of Lew Diamond, Jess McMahon, and several other boxing magnates.

In other words the busiest boxing manager in the business was doing business as usual with his steamer tickets in his pocket and the biggest boxing adventure of his career on the horizon out beyond the mists of Sandy Hook.

FAME OR FARM.

At a pause in his chatter about plans for the future, for fights in the fall in Atlanta, Macon, Chicago, Kansas City and points north, south, east and west, I broke in with a brand-new idea I had just fathomed:

"Wouldn't it be tough if you'd go over there and lose this thing on a foul or a lucky punch?"

Pa stopped his pacing the room, looked out of the window and said slowly:

"Well, I guess W. L. would go to flying the mail and I'd go on down to Thomasville and farm."

DARED THE BACKFIRE.

Pa was not far from wrong in his summary of the dire results of an unsuccessful mission to London. If Scott had whipped W. L.—and stranger things happen every day in the ring—the Von Porat fight would have looked like an accident and Stribling would have been just a false alarm who did not belong in fast company and never did.

The reaction would have been all the more pronounced because every boxing critic had gone down in black and white predicting a quick knockout for the Georgia boy.

But after calling the alternative result, Pa added with a grin: "But W. L. will get this Scott in four rounds or I'll be WILLING to go back to the farm."

And in a moment he was continuing his plans to go on from London as if the kayo already had been landed on the chin of Phil Scott.

EXACTLY WHAT PA ORDERED.

"Stribling wins knockout second round." That was the answer Pa wanted the cables to carry. It was the exact wording of the faith he placed in his boy.

The little man from south Georgia has taken rebuffs of fate on the chin and laughed at misfortune and criticism. When the world gave him jears he held his chin up and kept pushing on. His spirit never flagged. HE KNEW HIS BOY HAD THE STUFF.

One must admire the daring and the confidence of the man who took his son—sprained arm and all—across the seas to pit him before a strange audience in fistic combat with the best man that nation could produce.

BUSINESS AS USUAL.

And you can rest assured that when Pa Stribling awoke this morning—he has done so long ago due to the seven hours' difference in time—he plunged immediately into jockeying and angling for a bout with Max Schmeling in Germany or in America or in Iceland—anywhere.

Meanwhile he no doubt sent cables to the States by the bale confirming dates for fights here, there and yonder.

Pa can't get over the idea that a fighter must fight and keep on fighting.

J. H. TAYLOR ON BOBBY JONES.

Of all the nice things that were written in newspapers after Bobby Jones won the three championships—and there were enough to fill a dozen scrapbooks—none was so fine a tribute as that written by J. H. Taylor, British open champion 1894, 1895, 1900, 1909, 1913 under his own signature in "The News of the World," London.

It is a tribute to Bobby's skill as a golfer paid by an old master.

More than that, however, it is a simple, sincere statement of the esteem in which Bobby is held by English golfers.

The Taylor article follows: It is impossible to do adequate justice to the many phases of play in the Open Championship in one or two articles, so my readers will forgive me if I return to it again. One thing admits of no doubt—the title was won by the best golfer in the world. This is the highest form of commendation that can be paid to Robert Tyre Jones on a purely playing point of view, but, in my judgment, it is not the supreme compliment that can be offered.

To be acknowledged as the best golfer in the world and perhaps the greatest the game has ever produced is praise beyond computation, but to be the most popular golfer in the world ranks even higher.

I feel convinced that were the opinions of golfers in this country obtained on this question, Bobby Jones would head the list. And I do not believe that the vote would be accorded him because of his supreme golfing genius, but simply on account of his manly and modest virtues as a player of a very difficult game.

I do not claim to know Bobby intimately. I only know him like many others who have met him on his visits to this country and have played an occasional game together, but there is one virtue beyond all others that he possesses and which has impressed many more besides myself. That is his modesty.

Golf is a game that quickly knocks the conceit out of all who attempt to play it. It has no use for bounce or bravado and those who indulge in these attributes often use them as a cloak to hide the fear the game engenders.

Bobby would be tolerated if he were to ride the high horse

BRYAN GRANT HONORED TODAY BY ATLANTANS

National Net Champion Will Be Dined at A. A. C. at 12:30.

Bryan Grant, national clay courts tennis champion, will be honored today with a luncheon at the Atlanta Athletic Club at 12:30 o'clock.

Grant, who recently returned to Atlanta with the national title, followed but a few days behind Bobby Jones with his three major golf championships.

The luncheon, which will celebrate the first national singles title Atlanta has had, will find a notable group of former tennis players present along with the Atlantans who will be present to greet Grant.

Occupying a seat of honor along with Grant will be his father, Bryan Grant, Sr., who with Nat Thornton made up one of the nationally famous doubles teams some years ago.

FATHER AND SON.

It was Bryan Grant, Sr., who started his son on the trail which led to the championship. There was always a court at home for him to play on and it was at home under the instruction of his father that he first began to play.

Carlton Y. Smith, southern champion some time ago; Jack Mooney, for years Grant's closest competitor in Atlanta; Malon Courts, Jack Simpson and other tennis players and friends of Grant will be present.

Bobby Jones will be there to aid in paying tribute to another of Atlanta's champions. Lowary Arnold, Chip Robert, Al Doonan, Tess Bradshaw, Chick Ridley and others, well known in amateur sport circles, will be present.

RESERVATIONS.

Reservations may be had by calling the Atlanta Athletic Club secretary. Those who care to show Atlanta's appreciation of Grant's feat in bringing another national title to Atlanta are urged to be present.

Hail the Champion!

Johnny Lehman, left, one-time Hoosier farmer boy, but now of Chicago, is shown after receiving the trophy representing the western amateur golf championship. He defeated Ira Couch, right, in the finals. Lehman Sunday afternoon played off the medalist tie with Chick Evans and won that also.

TERRORS NOSED BY ACES, 2 TO 1

Ninth-Inning Rally Puts End to Great Mound Duel.

A two-run rally in the ninth inning enabled the Grant Park Aces to beat the North Side Terrors, 2 to 1, Monday morning at Clay field in the first of a three-game series to determine one of the finalists in Atlanta's sandlot series.

Copeland, of the winners, and Casey, of the losers, staged one of the best hurling duels that has been seen this year in sandlot circles. Copeland gave up six hits, no two of which came in the same inning. He struck out five batters and did not walk a single batter.

Casey had an advantage as far as fewer hits were concerned but two of those came with men in scoring positions in the ninth inning to give the winners two runs. Casey gave up only two hits until the ninth. He struck out 11 batters and walked two. The Terror run was made on a single and a couple of errors by the Aces infield.

There was not an extra base hit in the game. The Terror infield was tight in the pinches and prevented the Aces from scoring several times with sensational pickups and throws.

In today's sandlot schedule, the Murphy Eagles and the Kirkwood Vols will play at 10 o'clock on the Kirkwood diamond and at the same time on the Northeast Piedmont park diamond, the Smyrna Juniors and the Rink Dinks will play.

While the other series are in progress, Trammell Scott, state athletic director for the American Legion which is sponsoring the sandlot baseball schedule in Georgia, who came gave an investigation of charges that several of the Inman Park Cardinal team are over the age limit.

The score: Grant Park Aces . . . 000 000 002-2 4 3 North Side Terrors . . . 000 010-1 6 1 Copeland and Atkinson; Casey and Appling.

Travelers Obtain Moore From Vols

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 28.—(AP)—Billy Moore, young catcher for the Nashville Vols, has been obtained by the Little Rock Travelers and will join them in Memphis Wednesday, it was announced here tonight.

Moore will take the place of Enoch (Ginger) Shinnault, who has been taken ill and will be off for the season. Shinnault has been ordered to go to a cooler climate.

Strib's Rightful Place In Ring Now Realized

Nothing "New" About Georgian As He Reaches Top; Tough Breaks Retarded His Advance.

By Ralph McGill.

It is quite inevitable that the public will now be served with a myriad of panegyrics indited to "the new" W. L. "Young" Stribling, the best heavyweight champion of the world the game has today.

In the space of little more than 30 days he has knocked out Otto Von Porat, the hard-bitten, trial horse of the ring, and Phil Scott, another of England's corps of horizontal heavyweights.

Phil Scott, contrary to the usual custom of the English prize ring, finished on his knees, his face drawn in agony from a blow to the ribs. The knockout punch was probably a cumulative one, because Stribling had had the Englishman on the floor four times before the final punch, the gong apparently saving him in the first round.

All of this, following the knockout of Von Porat, who went down like a slugged cow under the punch of the Georgia heavyweight, will cause the boxing writers of the east, who have never been able to understand or believe in Stribling, to come out with caecophonous laudations of the man who is really heavyweight champion of the world.

All of which will cause quite a few people who have followed the Georgian all the way to laugh with something of an ironical ring in the merry, ha, ha.

This is no "new" Stribling. At the risk of repeating it may be said again that he is no better now than he has been for some time.

IN POOR SHAPE. In his fight against Tommy Loughran he was in poor physical condition. Against Paul Berlenbach he was weakened and in poor mental condition for a fight.

When he met Jack Sharkey at Miami he had an injured left arm which rendered that very valuable member of his fighting arsenal ineffective.

Stribling was never "in the racket." Consequently his defeats in those three fights, in which he was the favorite, caused him to incur the enmity of the gamblers, who practically rule the racket.

His defeats, especially the one at Miami, alienated a number of friends. Those three fights, in only one of which he lost by a decisive margin, were enough to bring him into disrepute in the east. Other fighters, in the racket, have fought worse fights and gone on.

Senators Purchase Star of K. C. Club

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(AP)—President Clark Griffith, of Washington Senators, tonight announced the purchase of Joseph Kuhel, first baseman, from the Kansas City club of the American association.

Already fortified by two good first basemen, Joe Judge and Art Shires, Griffith indicated the new purchase might mean Shires would be transferred to the outfield because of his hitting ability.

Griffith did not disclose the price paid for Kuhel but said he was an extremely costly rookie. The deal also involves the transfer of First Baseman Harley Boss from Chattanooga to Kansas City if waivers can be obtained.

NEW YORK,

Stribling Establishes Himself as American Heavyweight Champ

JACK SHARKEY NOW 'ALSO RAN' IN TITLE RACE

Georgian Only Man To Meet Max Schmeling for Crown.

By Ed Van Every,
New York World Staff Writer.
NEW YORK, July 28.—(AP)—William Lawrence Stribling, Georgia heavyweight, by his fine victory over Phil Scott, has advanced himself over Jack Sharkey to the position of American heavyweight champion.

In fact, the Georgian has not only eliminated "Fighting Phil," but he has also put "Weeping Phil" into the discard.

You can make a bet on it, that the man who faces Schmeling next summer in the bout for the world's title will be Young Stribling, or the man who beats Stribling for the chance.

And who will beat Stribling? Not Sharkey, even though the latter did get away with a decision over W. L. at Miami.

Four days before the meeting between these two, Stribling injured his left shoulder so severely that it looked as though it would be necessary to call the bout off.

However, he went through with the match and the best Sharkey could do was to win a close decision after a miserable battle. On the strength of what the two have shown against the English heavy-weight champion, Stribling is undoubtedly the better man.

Primo Carnera, the giant Italian, would seem to be the only big man capable of proving a stumbling block in the Georgian's way to the Schmeling bout.

Vittorio Campolo is a dangerous heavyweight, but his showings against Scott and Johnny Risko do not measure up comparatively with Stribling's work against these two.

Otto Von Porat, who was rated high early this year, was bowled over in a hurry by the conqueror of Scott. About all that is left is Tuffy Griffith and the latter would probably find W. L. much too experienced an opponent with too much wallop in his right.

If Stribling comes through to the heavyweight championship of the world he will only be making good the things predicted of him when he startled the boxing world while still under age.

Stribling has done more fighting than any three of the leading heavyweights combined. So far he has taken part in more than 270 bouts since he started his ring career in 1921, while yet a high school boy.

While he has engaged in a great number of "sucker matches" he has fought all of the best light-heavy and heavyweights, including Maxie Rosenblum, Jimmy Slattery, Johnny Risko, and nearly every one else of any note.

Outside of his defeats, by Sharkey, Tommy Loughran and Paul Berlenbach, he has lost but few bouts and has registered something like 115 knockouts.

Macon Fans Go Wild As Strib Wins Fight

MACON, Ga., July 28.—(AP)—A surging crowd, including men, women and children of all races and nationalities, packed Macon's chief thoroughfare, Cherry street, here this afternoon to listen to the Associated Press returns of the fight between W. L. (Young) Stribling, Macon heavyweight, and Phil Scott in London. Anxious and restless, the crowd was kept intact by Macon's police force, but when the announcer yelled "Stribling wins by a knock-out in the second round," the hundreds of loyal fans were thunderous in their shouts, and the police force let them disperse in fashion becoming a riot.

Stragglers began stopping in front of the Macon Telegraph building fully an hour before the fight started. The crowd grew and grew, and the police force was called out to open a lane for traffic.

Everyone seemed confident that the Macon battler would win, but the round in which he would do it worried them most.

After the first round, in which Stribling knocked Scott down four times, the Macon fans did not worry.

Local people who could not listen to the returns kept the phones of the Telegraph busy for several hours asking the results of the fight. When they received the answer, most of them gave a shout and hung up.

Basid calls from Macon people, The Telegraph received many from south Georgia towns. Wires also came in with regularity.

Macon is a happy town tonight—very happy because of one of her most esteemed citizens advanced another notch toward the heavyweight championship.

Stribling Eliminated Big Nuisance--Pegler

By Knocking Out Scott, W. L. Prevented Another Invasion of Swooning Englishman.

By Westbrook Pegler.
NEW YORK, July 28.—William Stribling performed the amende honorable when he knocked out "Phanting Phil" Scott in London this evening. By doing so he will have forestalled another of Phil's swooning exhibitions on this side of the water and that, in a business which allows the customers few happy moments, will induce a feeling of vengeance, mitigated only by the fact that retribution against Phil is far from the view of those who had paid large sums on this side to see this done to him.

The moving pictures of Phil going into the coma on his own mattress without sounding any claim of mal-practice, and with the voice of the English referee counting him out, should do a prosperous business in all American centers of pugilism and I should like to own the American rights of the same.

It is regrettable also that the Stribling boy, when he made one of the thoroughly satisfactory fights of his entire career, should have chosen London, England, as the scene of this phenomenon, because he is by now indebted to the American patrons in the sum of several hundred thousand dollars and no fewer than one hundred fights. However, it would be ungrateful to withhold appreciation of his great public service in eliminating "Phanting Phil" and obviating his return to America and when William comes back there will be an occasion for a civic and popular reception such as New York has never given any one before.

DESTROY'S NUISANCE.
Not to deny Bobby Jones nor Colonel Lindbergh any credit for their achievements it must be admitted that the British golfers whom Jones defeated had never had any ranking grudge against the Atlantic ocean which Colonel Lindbergh conquered.

The Stribling boy, however, has finally destroyed a nuisance which seriously impaired the peace of a great many citizens. Philip was becoming a menace. He was always coming back to flop on the floor with his legs folded over his sensitive center, rolling his bottle green eyes up into his head and moaning, "O, O, O."

Outside of his defeats, by Sharkey, Tommy Loughran and Paul Berlenbach, he has lost but few bouts and has registered something like 115 knockouts.

Three Atlantans
Win at Asheville
ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 28.—(AP)—Seeded contestants drifted into the second round of the North Carolina open tennis tournament which opened here today with byes and west opponents enabling the favored eight to gain the second round with little effort. Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C., titleholder and seeded No. 1, had little difficulty in disposing of J. G. McAllister, Hampden-Sydney player, 6-3, 6-1, on the Billmore Forest Country Club courts.

Judge Beaver, of Gainesville, Ga., Hines' doubles partner, also advanced with ease, downing Willard Silcox, of Charleston, S. C., straight sets, 6-3, 6-2.

In the only other competition for a seeded player, Jack Beckman, of Charleston, S. C., defeated Lawrence Jones, of Charlotte, 6-2, 6-4.

Other seeded players went into the second round by virtue of the draw were Ralph Demott, of Atlanta, runner-up last year; A. and J. Halverstadt, Atlanta; Lenior Wright, Charlotte and Tench Cox, of Asheville.

Forty players were in competition in the opening matches of the tournament.

Canadian Open
Finals Wednesday
ANCASTER, Ontario, July 28.—(AP)—For the 12th year in succession Canada's open golf championship will go to the United States.

Tommy Armour, Detroit professional, shot an almost incredible 64 on his fourth round Saturday to the Leo Diegel, Argus Caliente pro, for the lead at 277 for the 72-hole competition. Plans to play off the deadlock yesterday were abandoned when it was learned both Diegel and Armour had booked exhibition matches for yesterday and arrangements were made to decide the championship over the 36-hole route at the Hamilton Country Club here Wednesday.

WINS LONG SWIM.
NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP)—Sam Shields, of Miami Fla., won the 27-1/2-mile swim around Manhattan Island today, setting a new record of eight hours 35 minutes for the event. Anne Preller Benoit, of Holyoke, Mass., first of the three women entries to finish, set a new women's record for the course which she swam in nine hours 1 minute, finishing fifth.

SMASHING FINISHES PHIL IN ROUND TWO

Record Crowd Sees Georgia Boy Defeat British Heavyweight.

There were as hard to control as a prairie fire. Suppressed in one spot they promptly broke out in another.

GATE CRASHERS.
The issues at stake weren't always clear, but in general the private quarrels had something to do with whether or not they had been obstructing the view and whether customers in standing sections were taking up too much space.

The gate crashers also contributed to the entertainment, making raids into the big ring side arena where the usual rows of men reclined at ease in folding deck chairs.

As a crowning touch to the gate crashing art, when darkness fell ladders were placed against the stand from the outside and hundreds scaled to the ridge of the roof while masses of cockeys inside broke down the railings and invaded the higher priced sections.

All the bobbies seemed to be on a holiday. The flood hummed London crowd enjoyed it all after the four or five minutes of major engagement retired to their clubs where many conversations dwelt upon the sum of the Anglo-American relations, which began way back there in 1800 or thereabouts, when Tom Sayers and John Camel Heenan fought 40 rounds at Farnborough, some of the rounds of 15 and 20 minutes' duration.

Blow by Blow
Detail of Fight.
ROUND ONE.
Stribling boxed with the Englishman for a few moments and then landed his right to Scott's chin, following it with a series of lefts to the head. The men were warned for wrestling. Stribling nailed his man and Scott went down for a count of five. Just as he rose a left to the stomach dropped the Englishman for a count of seven.

Fighting like a tiger, Stribling sailed into his man and dropped him again, this time for nine.

ROUND TWO.
Scott led with a left but Stribling stepped aside and drove a hard left to the stomach. Scott showed some fight and landed a return for which he expended a total effort of one left jab and one right cross to Jack Sharkey's mouth in Miami last winter.

W. L. ENDED IT.
His manager, as ex-officio chairman of the New York prize fight commission, was always jumping him over the heads of the other entrants in the heavyweight eliminations, reinstating him at the top of the eligible list, and if William Stribling had not knocked him out he would have been coming back again this spring to fight Schmeling for the heavyweight championship of the world. Some people have an irritant quality which makes their very existence a trial and Philip was a party who got in the customers' hair.

William, now that he has knocked out Philip, will be advanced to the head of the class beyond Sharkey who does not care to fight.

The customers are indomitable optimists and I am afraid I must be a customer at heart because, considering William's recent record of knockouts, I am given to wonder if he has not perhaps conquered his early reticence and learned to punch. If so, being a much better boxer than Max Schmeling, he must be able to knock him out too, although it will be a much harder problem to catch Schmeling in a ring than to knock him out of one.

The return of William Stribling should be a picturesque spectacle. Of course, his old adherents of the Ku Klux Klan will wish to march in the parade along with those New York customers of opposite conviction who will desire to honor him, also, for what he did in England. When a man has knocked out Phil Scott it is no time to quibble over trivial differences.

UNDER WAY.
The preliminaries got under way here the big crowd was better entertained by the violence of the fight, which broke out in the sections of the stands where the five shilling customers were packed into standing room. The crowds in the cheaper benches broke down the barriers once and rushed the empty section of the reserved seats, trampling upon the drenched spectators.

During the excitement nobody paid the least attention to a preliminary go between two British heavyweights, Gunner Bennett and Marine Trinder. The crowds were finding and providing their own entertainment.

The British light ballyho, especially for this match, heralded a battle for the heavyweight championship of the old world, always includes a tend but none were at the attention of the crowd was centered on the free-for-all battles and the invasion of the central arena by raiders from the far away sections. A big crowd also was assembled outside and at times appeared to threaten a general mass attack on the enclosure.

Police appeared to be on duty inside the arena and the job of maintaining order was in the hands of the gray haired reserve who were no match for the disturbers of the peace. The crowd approached the 30,000 mark as Stribling made his way toward the ring and enjoyed all the scraps.

GATE CRASHERS.
As darkness fell the gate crashers outside the arena, apparently prepared and waiting for their opportunity, threw long ladders against the outside walls and climbed to the roofs of the stands.

Stribling, in a blue dressing gown with the insignia of the reserve air corps on his back, bounced into the ring first with his manager and father, "Pa" Stribling, at his heels. He was generously applauded but the big roar that filled the stadium came as Scott, smiling and apparently not the least bit nervous, climbed to his corner a few seconds later. Stribling weighed 188 pounds; Scott 206.

Scott wore dark purple tights with small union jacks on each leg. Just before the bout Joe Beckett, former British champion, reached through the ropes to shake Phil's hand and wish him well for England.

CONSISTENT.
For five straight years the Brooklyn Dodgers finished in sixth place in the National League race.

Stribling-Campolo
Fight Is Sought
NEW YORK, July 28.—(UN.)—Frank Bruen, general manager of Madison Square Garden Corp., announced today he had opened negotiations for a heavyweight match at Yankee Stadium September 25 between Young Stribling, of Georgia, who knocked out Phil Scott in the second round tonight in London and Vittorio Campolo of the Argentine.

"If Stribling wins before he left for England he was willing for his boy to meet Campolo," said Bruen, "and unless he has changed his mind the match will be made."

TUNNEY, KNIGHT
TO FIGHT HERE
Semi-Windup on Goodrich Card To Rival Main Bout.
When Ted Goodrich meets Billy Algers, the Arizona welterweight, at the auditorium August 5, the semi-windup bout will rival the main event in interest.

Max Abelson, matchmaker, promised this yesterday when he announced that he had signed Joe Knight, the Cairo, Ga., light-heavyweight sensation, to meet Jack Tunney, the young Birmingham giant, in a 10-round contest.

Tunney has fought here several times since he began his climb in professional boxing and has won many friends by his slashing style and willingness to trade punches with any man. The Birmingham boy has been called by some critics the best heavyweight prospect developed in this section in years.

Joe Knight is even younger than Tunney and has been handled as just another great prospect. Matchmaker Abelson thinks the two young cyclones will set fans wild and give them something to talk about for years.

No effort has been made to stage the show out of doors, the promoter says. The auditorium is cooled and will offer an ideal setting for a show even in the hottest weather.

In and presenting Ted Goodrich, recently Atlanta's chief hope in the welterweight division, in his comeback engagement, the promoter expects to put a big crowd through the gates and put boxing into popular favor once again.

PRESIDENT'S CUP PLAY CONTINUES

Druid Hills golfers completed four matches Monday in the annual president's cup championship tournament.

V. A. Gilreath, 4-2, in one of the best matches of the afternoon.

Jack Bothamley defeated Bayne Gibson, 7-5; Dr. J. J. Clark defeated H. S. Collingsworth 2 up, and Joe Horacek, Jr., defeated Dr. C. W. Roberts, 7-6, in a second-flight match.

Shropshire Plays
Well To Win.
Tommy Shropshire, Jr., defeated Roby Robinson, 5-4, Monday afternoon in the only match played on the Capital City course in the annual club championship tournament.

Shropshire played one of his best rounds of the year, carding a 73, one stroke over par for the 18-hole layout. Robinson's golf was not at all bad. His card showed a 78, but Shropshire's 73 was too much for him to overcome.

Krueger Is Released
First Time in Career
NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 28.—(AP)—Release by the Nashville Volunteers of Ernie Krueger marks the first time in 19 seasons of professional baseball that the veteran catcher has been given his unconditional release.

Krueger started playing in 1912 with the Traverse City club of the old Michigan-Ontario league, under Jimmy Hammon, now of the Mobile club. For a number of years he was in the major league, playing with Brooklyn in the world's series with Cleveland in 1920. While with Indianapolis in the American Association, Krueger caught 164 games in one season, and with Minneapolis he hit four consecutive home runs.

BRITISH HEER AS STRIBLING KAVOES SCOTT

"Phalling Phil" Boored by Great Crowd—W. L. Praised by All.

By Gerard Walter,
English Boxing Expert.

RINGSIDE, Wimbledon, England, July 28.—Forty thousand Englishmen swarmed a welcome to Phil Scott as he stepped into the arena here tonight to meet Young Stribling, from the United States, in a 10-round heavyweight battle, but that spectacular welcoming cheer turned into a crescendo of hoots and hisses as Scott was ushered out of the ring a few minutes later after being counted out in the second round, the victim of a slashing left to the ribs.

Scott has never appeared in such a bad light before the English people, who hitherto have thought he was unfairly treated at Miami. Stribling has always been popular over here, for he is a fighter, and the English love fighters.

GREAT EXHIBITION.
The American gave a great exhibition, making Scott look foolish all the way. The English champion's performance was a great disappointment, and Stribling, by his easy victory, made most of the crowd believe Sharkey won the Miami fight whether there was a foul or not. This feeling found expression in the shouts of "Go back to Norway, Phil," at the end of the fight.

Stribling, cool and confident, walked to victory. Unsmiling except at the finish, he made more friends in London tonight than Scott ever had. English fans are now wondering why Stribling has not met Sharkey for the world's championship yet, this. The American left the English with the raised huge crowd, which included distinguished stage stars and society leaders, to a frenzy.

No English boxer possesses the fighting qualities of this American and envy is the only feeling we now have regarding him. After the test, Joe Beckett, former English champion, challenged the winner, but he is, for the prize ring, an old man and never was good enough for Stribling.

SCOTT FRIGHTENED.
Scott seemed frightened as soon as the contest started and wore a worried look all through the bout. He did not land a single blow and was counted out on one knee after he had visited the canvas four times before that.

Scott is definitely out of the running for the world's heavyweight title. There is little sympathy with him in his own country now, for he has thrown away his chance of meeting Max Schmeling in a championship contest.

The American knew, of course, even before the fight, that he would win. He had seen Scott box and said to me some days ago:

"I can lick this fellow. He has a good left, but there is no go in him." Scott said about the same thing to me just before the fight. "I can win," he said. "Believe me, you will see a different Scott tonight when the one at Miami."

I was not impressed with Stribling's defense tonight, but he had no cause to reveal a defense. He is the best boxer from America seen here in many years.

SHOTS OF FOUL.
There were shouts of "foul" when Stribling first sent Scott down for the count of nine, but these shouts were quickly hushed when Referee Russell waved his hand contemptuously to the timekeeper who was counting steadily.

Scott went down four times in the first round from left hooks to the body, but none of the blows was foul. Stribling had no need to feel Scott. He could lick him well and truly without fouling and his tiger rushes found Scott's defense as wide open as a barn door.

Tonight offered no real test of Stribling's quality. He used no punch of real strength and he really found no need to be quick footed for Scott was very slow.

Stribling was the easiest winner seen here in years in a heavyweight battle. English ring followers thought highly of him before this fight and now thousands look to him to win the world's championship. We certainly believe he can win it. He is a good fighter with no trills, and possesses science when it is required.

But in this country he has never revealed his best because we have no man good enough to draw out the best from him.

Over here we wish only that Stribling were an Englishman. But he could not have been cheered more widely tonight had he been English.

Bainbridge Takes
Baseball Lead
THOMASVILLE, Ga., July 28.—The South Georgia and Florida Six-County baseball league begins this week with Bainbridge in the lead in the percentage column, and Thomasville just a lap behind. The teams of these two towns are scheduled for two games against each other this week, in Bainbridge on Tuesday, and here on Thursday, and the result of these contests will affect the league leadership. Other contests in this league for the week are, Monticello, and again in Perry on Thursday. Tallahassee goes up against Valdosta in the Lowndes county capital city on Tuesday. Valdosta goes to the Florida state capital for the return game on Thursday. The season, which started early in May, will come to an end with games played by all teams on Thursday, August 21.

GREY SOX WIN.
ROME, G. L., July 28.—Atlanta Grey Sox defeated the Rome Blue Caps, 5 to 2, here this afternoon in a well-played game. The visitors hit consistently in the pinches to score five runs.

New Jarvelin Mark Is Set by Finn Star

STOCKHOLM, July 28.—(AP)—Matti Jarvelin, of Finland, set a new world's record today by throwing the javelin 72.38 meters, or 237 feet, 5.85-128 inches, in an international track and field meet here.

The present listed record is 222 feet 11 5/8 inches, made by Lundquist, of Sweden at Stockholm in 1928.

CARNERA GETS HEARING MOVED

Primo Pleads "Previous Engagement;" Heads Will Wait Till Friday.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(AP)—At the request of Primo Carnera, Italian pugilist, the labor department board of review postponed until Friday a hearing which was granted him in stay of an order requiring him to leave the country as alien inadmissible for permanent residence.

Carnera was said to have "engagements" in Cleveland which made it impossible for him to come to Washington.

The boxer entered the country originally as a temporary visitor. When his six months time expired he was refused an extension and notified that he would have to leave.

A reconstruction was sought. The immigration service granted it with the result that the further hearing is now scheduled at which he may present evidence which he considers would justify the government in extending his stay.

N. B. A. Reinstates
Carnera; See Must Go.
CINCINNATI, July 28.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight boxer, suspended last spring by the National Boxing Association after a match with Leon Chavaler on the Pacific coast, was tentatively reinstated today by the National Boxing Association.

Lifting of the suspension was conditioned upon the stipulation that Carnera dispose of the services of his manager, Leon See, Stanley Isaacson, National Boxing Association president, said the suspension against See will remain in force.

The National Boxing Association found Carnera apparently was blameless for circumstances surrounding the Chavaler fight and that the Italian's destinies were guided by "shady and avicious managers."

He has been as good as he is now for years. All he needed was the breaks. They seem to be coming his way now.

When they mention the "new" Stribling the cue is to laugh coarsely.

anything honest in his injuries. As a consequence he found himself practically out of the money when he lost a doubtful decision at Miami to Jack Sharkey.

He had had three big chances. The gamblers and the experts in the racket said he was through. They relegated him to toasting the sticks for the remainder of his career.

He didn't buy his way up—he pounded on the door of unfriendly opposition until he broke through to the top again. In a game shot through with sinister robberies, bold and flagrant rule violations, questionable officiating and dishonest fighters, Stribling began to appear as the real hope of the boxing game.

The world knew that Max Schmeling was a poor champion at best when he was carried off the canvas, writhing with pain, after his match with Sharkey was ended. The hysterical, dumb-witted Sharkey, tough and a great boxer, appeared in an even sorer role than the sorry ones he had occupied before.

Max Schmeling would no more get in the ring with W. L. Stribling than he would climb into a den of rattlesnakes. Max knows. Max knows.

ONLY REAL ONE.
The fight game hasn't a figure to compare with Stribling in honesty of purpose and character. Even the heeable James Joseph (Gene) Tunney had that peculiar contract with Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, of Philadelphia, to explain before his first fight with Jack Dempsey.

This is a "new" Stribling who stands out today as the best heavyweight in the fight game. It is the same one who has been in there for some time. He barely lost a decision to Jack Sharkey and fought with one hand. That seems to have been the last of his tough breaks.

He has been as good as he is now for years. All he needed was the breaks. They seem to be coming his way now.

PELICANS HERE ON WEDNESDAY FOR TWO GAMES

Five Contests With New Orleans Give Club Great Chance.

By Ralph McGill.

Atlanta's "elevator" baseball team, now up, now down, will return home Wednesday to take up the cudgels against the New Orleans Pelicans.

Despite a terrible collapse at Memphis, when they opened the road trip which concludes today at Nashville, the club has again climbed to a position where it can threaten third and even second place.

The series which opens tomorrow will be one of utmost importance to the Crackers. If they cannot win a majority of the five games scheduled with the Pelicans, starting with a double bill on Wednesday, the first division goose will not be hanging high but very low indeed.

HARD FIGHT.
There is a terrific scramble going on around the door up from the cellar. The Travelers and the Crackers have bobbed out time after time but neither has shown any staying power. It is high time for someone to really dig in and intrench in the first division.

Atlanta's opportunity begins tomorrow. The Crackers have shown an ability to beat most clubs, the Memphis Chickasaws excepted. The Pelicans have not been unusually poisonous to the Crackers. A little old-fashioned bearing down should bring the Crackers in with a majority of the Pelican games.

PELS BUY PITCHER.
The Pelicans have purchased Delmar Lundgren, Vol pitcher of last season, from the Minneapolis Millers. Lundgren, a right-hander, was expected to be a sensation in the American association but never struck the stride that made him a winner with the Vols.

The Crackers, who could use another player or so, announced Monday the signing of Johnny Cummings, last year a freshman star at Vanderbilt University. Cummings was a star at football and baseball but considered baseball his real game. Cummings will report next spring. It is barely possible that the Crackers will have another deal to announce before the week is done.

FANS INTERESTED.
Meanwhile the club's series with New Orleans holds the interest of the fans, revived somewhat after the Memphis disaster.

The club goes on the road following the trip, moving back to Nashville for four games and then coming back home to play the Barons and Pelicans again.

The next two weeks are pretty sure to determine whether the "elevator" club will stay up or go down permanently.

Rifle Shooters Meet August 3
Adjutant General Homer C. Parker has authorized the tryouts for the Georgia state civilian rifle team to be held at Fort McPherson rifle range Sunday, August 3, 1936. This tryout is held each year for the purpose of selecting a team of civilian riflemen to represent the state of Georgia at the national rifle and pistol matches held at Camp Perry, Ohio. The matches this year will be from August 24 to September 15, inclusive.

John S. McDonald, secretary of the Atlanta Rifle Club, has been appointed by General Parker to conduct the tryouts. Anyone desiring further information in regard to the tryouts or the national match write John S. McDonald, P. O. Box 1742, Atlanta, Ga.

ORIOLES STRENGTHEN.
The Baltimore Orioles will take Stub Rase, pitching ace of the Cumberland club, at the end of the Middle Atlantic season.

Pels Get Lundgren From Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 28.—(AP)—Sale of Del Lundgren, right-hand pitcher, to New Orleans, Southern association, was announced today by the Minneapolis American association club.

Lundgren, who came here from the Nashville club, failed to round into form this season.

PAXOS DENIES 'CLAN' CHARGE

John Paxos, who wrestles Paul Jones here Thursday night at Spiller field, indignantly denies that he is wrestling for anyone but himself.

Fans thought Paxos was acting as a buffer for champion Jim Londos because of Londos' statement that he would wrestle Jones if Jones could beat John Paxos.

Paxos says that he doesn't think Jones can beat him and that if Londos mentioned him it was because he thought he could give Jones a licking.

Jones is expected here today or tomorrow to begin workouts for the match. Paxos is also expected in today or tomorrow.

Jones will rule a slight favorite in the match but Paxos is recognized as a tough man to beat.

The semi-windup, which offers Mike Miller, American wrestler, who has advanced to the position of a contender, is also attracting attention. Mike Miller, a World War veteran of four years' experience in arms during the World War, holds the American Legion belt and victories over several leading heavyweights.

He meets Milo Steinborn, the world's strongest wrestler. Fans never seem to tire of Steinborn. To see him lift a 200-pound man high over his head, or toss one high in the air with one kick of his feet, is something that gives the fans a real thrill.

Steinborn is always hard to beat. He should be at his best against the big 215-pound Miller.

Tickets are on sale at the Piedmont hatters and at the Candler building soda fountain. Jones has a large number of friends here who will be present to root for him in the match which will determine whether or not he gets a match with Londos in Atlanta.

UPSETS FEATURE MEET IN DECATUR
Two upsets featured Monday's rounds in the annual Decatur tennis tournaments, being played on three private courts in DeKalb county.

Dr. George Hayes, an Agnes Scott professor, continued his great play and eliminated Pierre Howard, 6-2, 6-3, and Hansford Sams defeated Milo Potreck, 6-4, 6-2, in another surprise victory.

Both Hayes and Sams were regarded as two of the best players but were not expected to defeat Howard, 1929 junior champion, and Potreck, a veteran Decatur tennis star. The Hayes-Howard match was the only quarter final in the men's singles, the other matches being in the third round.

W. Jackson defeated S. Slack, 8-6, 6-3, and T. D. Thompson defeated J. K. Kirkpatrick, 6-0, 6-3, in two other men's single matches.

Only one match was played in the women's doubles. J. J. and Candler defeated Smoot and McEver, 6-0, 6-1. In the mixed double match of the afternoon, Cunningham and McQueen defeated Seaman and Malone, 6-2, 9-7. Three quarter-final matches will be played this afternoon in the men's singles. The remaining quarter-final matches in the doubles and semi-final matches in the junior singles are scheduled to be played today.

THOMAS NAMED TO 'BAMA POST. FROM LONG LIST

Newman Says Tide Heads Chose Wisely and Well.

By Zipp Newman.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 28.—Naming Wallace Wade's successor at the University of Alabama is a thing above whispers and rumors.

Frank W. Thomas, one of the first to introduce the south to Knute Rockne's system, has been honored with the assignment of head football coach at the University of Alabama and will assume his new duties January 1.

And Thomas was named from a long list of capable coaches considered for the position—on the first ballot. The position sought the coach and Georgia's loss is Alabama's gain.

NO STRANGER.
Frank Thomas is no stranger to southern football. He has been tried and found to be an excellent football coach, a coach Georgia reluctantly gives up—and he should do well at the University of Alabama with Hank Crisp and Jess Neely to aid him. It will be interesting to watch these three young coaches put to test their modern theories of football—all based on sound fundamentals.

Two weeks after Wallace Wade announced his resignation as head football coach at the University of Alabama, the athletic committee began searching for his successor.

CRISP SPEAKS.
Hank Crisp, the newly appointed athletic director, spoke up and told the committee where they could find a coach thoroughly versed in southern football without going 200 miles to find him.

Crisp named Thomas as a coach to be desired for the opening and after receiving permission from the University of Georgia—Thomas was invited to come to the university and look around, discuss matters pertaining to him being named head football coach.

Frank W. Thomas agreed six weeks ago to accept a three-year contract—but he wanted to be sure Alabama would be satisfied with him.

WAITED SIX WEEKS.
So he asked them to wait six weeks—and the longer the committee waited the more they desired to sign Frank W. Thomas—one of the first apostles of Knute Rockne's system of football in the south. Evidence why Thomas should be offered the opening came from coaches all over the country.

So Thomas will begin his coaching career at Alabama with Jess Neely and Hank Crisp eager to serve him and this harmonious group should keep Alabama's name high in the football alphabet.

With Auburn having installed a coaching staff composed of three Notre Dame all-American stars and Alabama to adopt the Notre Dame system—the old state of Alabama is going to the shifts. It will not take the high schools long to adopt the Notre Dame system.

HELPS PREPS.
By 1933 it will be easy to look out the window and see boys doing the fancy steps—counting and yelling like the introduction of four Notre Dame coaches will be a boon to high school football.

Coming of Wynne, Cannon, Riley and Thomas to Alabama will soon mean that both Auburn and Alabama will be given places on Notre Dame's football schedule.

Age Does Not Bar Billiard Players
Charles Rosenthal, of New York, who recently celebrated his ninety-third birthday, was a close friend of President Grant and often played billiards with the Civil War hero. Age is no bar to billiards and this is indicated clearly in the Perpetual Youth tournament conducted annually by Charles C. Peterson in St. Louis. Last year the winner was 91. The minimum age for membership is 70.

'Touchdown Twins' Visit Bonesetter

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 28.—(AP)—Gene McEver and Buddy Hackman, known as the "Touchdown Twins" at the University of Tennessee, have been sent to a specialist at Youngstown, Ohio, for treatment. This is the last season for the stars at Tennessee.

McEver, while rounding first base in a baseball game at Appalacheicola, Va., Saturday, twisted his right leg, dislocating his knee. The extent of the injuries could not be determined, so McEver left today for Youngstown, where Hackman is already undergoing treatment for leg injuries.

Kimrey weighed 195 pounds; Lumpkin 193 1-2.

Bowen Again Wins On Finnish Track

HELSINGFORS, July 28.—(AP)—Pete Bowen, short distance running star of the American track and field team competing here, won the 200 meter dash today in 21.6 seconds, setting a new Finnish record. Bowen won the 100 and 400 meter events yesterday.

In the 200 meters, Akilles Jarvinen, Finland, was second in 21.8. Stephen Anderson, of the University of Washington, another of the invading American stars, won the 110 meter high hurdles in 14.8 with Sjostedt, of Finland, second.

Paul Vonckx, of Harvard, was beaten in the hammer throw by Erikson, of Finland, who made a heave of 47.33 meters or 157 feet, 3 5-128 inches. Vonckx whirled the hammer 47.48 meters or 155 feet, 9 3-128 inches.

Foxx and Cochrane Star in Athletics, Nose Out Yanks, 6 to 5

LEADERS BATTLE TWELVE INNINGS TO GET VERDICT

Jim Foxx Hits Homer and Mickey Winning Single.

PHILADELPHIA, July 28.—(AP)—The Yankees' 20th home run in the ninth inning put Mickey Cochrane's single in the 12th, gave the Athletics a 6-5 extra-inning decision over the Yankees today.

Foxx's homer found Cramer on base and overcame a two-run lead held by the Yankees, sending the game into extra innings. Ruffin relieved Sherid in the eleventh with the bases loaded and none out, but managed to get out of the hole. He was not so fortunate, however, in the twelfth. Earnshaw led off with a triple. Bishop and Cramer were purposely passed, but Cochrane came through with a single.

Walberg started on the mound for the Athletics but was relieved by Earnshaw in the ninth.

THE CLASS OF 1919.

The class of 1919 was not only one of the most famous in sport, but it is somewhat remarkable how active it still is in the news and headlines of the day.

It was in 1919 that Bill Tilden went across to win his first, major competition in regaining, or helping to regain, the Davis cup. It was in 1919 that Babe Ruth suddenly emerged as a home run hitter, setting a new record.

It was in 1919 that Jack Dempsey pulled off the massacre of Maumee bay by annihilating Jess Willard.

Only Jack Dempsey has faded from the competitive picture. And it was in 1919 that Bobby Jones, then 17, fought his way for the first time to the final round of a major championship.

No other four men have ever made as much sporting history as these four in any country in the world.

Tilden, although beaten by Cochet on Saturday, is still the national tennis champion of the United States and the Wimbledon champion. And he is almost certain to retain his United States title at Forest Hills in early September. Who is going to stop him?

Babe Ruth is still leading the two major leagues in the home run department of the game and he is now well ahead of all past records at this point.

Bobby Jones is facing his chance to break all golf records by winning four major championships in a row.

Only Jack Dempsey has faded from the competitive picture. It has been eight years now since he struck a hostile blow and there is practically no chance that he will go after another big shot after waiting so long.

A three-year period of idleness—from 32 to 35—is entirely too long to give him any chance to work back.

ANOTHER 1919 ENTRY.

It was also in 1919 that Gene Tunney first caught the headlines by winning the light-heavyweight championship of the A. E. F., although he was then seven years from the main title.

Tunney, like Dempsey, is now out of the pugilistic swirl, with even less desire to try more starts.

Nineteen hundred and nineteen is the class that will probably last longer in the history of sport than any other. And three of them are still writing history with a golf club, baseball bat and tennis racket.

THE BROOKLYN SHADOW.

For the greater part of the season, Cub rosters have been in greater fear of the Giants than the Dodgers. They couldn't figure the Dodgers lasting the year, where the Giants might with one of the best infielders in baseball.

But with August approaching the Chicago fan division is beginning to cast anxious eyes in the general direction of Wilbert Robinson, who is not hard to see. The Giants can't get the pitcher.

The Dodgers have gotten good pitching right along and they have their share of the punch. About this time last summer the Cubs were moving away from the field to open a wide gap, but they are not moving away from the Dodgers just now. They have a much harder ball club to beat out, in spite of the heavy bombs they have tossed into Dodger ranks.

The big Cub chance will come when Joe McCarthy moves his young men back to the fragrant odor of home cooking, with Hornsby ready to resume.

Cleveland will win no pennant this season, but here is one ball club which should present the best pitcher in either league—the same being young Wesley Ferrell, who is now facing his seventeenth victory with two months longer to go. Ferrell should be good for 25 victories this summer and that will be quite enough to lead any pitcher now facing the heavy artillery of the day.

"What," asks F. L., "about the Davis cup of 1931?" Nineteen hundred thirty-one, in sport, is a long way off. But as long as a fellow like the one of Henri Cochet is around there is no great hope in sight. There is no young American player now around with a chance to beat Cochet. Borotra is almost through, but when you have a defender good for two matches where you need only three, the size of the odds can be readily figured out.

Risko-Schaaf Go Put Off for Week

LYNCHBURG, Va., July 28.—(AP)—Reginald S. (Peg) White, first baseman for the Lynchburg Star, has been signed by Detroit of the American league team by Scout Frank Moffett, who has seen White play several games. White is a first baseman. He is not to report until next season.

Robins Blank Braves But Lose Points to Cham- pion Cubs.

CHICAGO, July 28.—(AP)—The National league champion Cubs picked up a half-game on the leading Brooklyn Robins today by winning both games of a doubleheader from Cincinnati, 3 to 2, and 5 to 3. Brooklyn, meanwhile, was taking a 2-0 decision from the Braves in the first game.

The twin victories broke the Cincinnati jinx which has done plenty to keep the Cubs out of the National league leadership. Charlie Root out-pitched Bonny Frey in the first game, giving seven hits and fanning 12 men. Gabby Hartnett aided the cause with a home run in the fourth.

Guy Bush pitched the Cubs to victory in the second game. Jackie Maestri started for Cincinnati but was knocked from the rubber in the third when Chicago scored four times. Harry Heilmann, first baseman for the Reds in the second inning, More than 35,000 turned out for the Cub homecoming.

Hollis Thurston, veteran right-handed pitcher of the pace-setting Robins, turned in his second consecutive shut-out victory today, holding the Braves to two hits as the Robins won, 2 to 0.

Only three Braves reached first today and two of them were stranded there, while the third went out by the double play route. Cantwell and Pinch-hitter Clark connected with the two blows off Thurston, while Maraville was given a base on balls.

Johnny Frederick led the Robins' attack with a double and two singles. His double, coupled with a similar hit by Wally Gilbert, scored Brooklyn's first run in the fourth, while one of the singled led off the rally that counted for the other run in the sixth.

CHICAGO ROCKS UP HALF GAME BY DOUBLE WIN

CHICAGO, July 28.—(AP)—The National league champion Cubs picked up a half-game on the leading Brooklyn Robins today by winning both games of a doubleheader from Cincinnati, 3 to 2, and 5 to 3. Brooklyn, meanwhile, was taking a 2-0 decision from the Braves in the first game.

The twin victories broke the Cincinnati jinx which has done plenty to keep the Cubs out of the National league leadership. Charlie Root out-pitched Bonny Frey in the first game, giving seven hits and fanning 12 men. Gabby Hartnett aided the cause with a home run in the fourth.

Guy Bush pitched the Cubs to victory in the second game. Jackie Maestri started for Cincinnati but was knocked from the rubber in the third when Chicago scored four times. Harry Heilmann, first baseman for the Reds in the second inning, More than 35,000 turned out for the Cub homecoming.

Hollis Thurston, veteran right-handed pitcher of the pace-setting Robins, turned in his second consecutive shut-out victory today, holding the Braves to two hits as the Robins won, 2 to 0.

Only three Braves reached first today and two of them were stranded there, while the third went out by the double play route. Cantwell and Pinch-hitter Clark connected with the two blows off Thurston, while Maraville was given a base on balls.

Johnny Frederick led the Robins' attack with a double and two singles. His double, coupled with a similar hit by Wally Gilbert, scored Brooklyn's first run in the fourth, while one of the singled led off the rally that counted for the other run in the sixth.

Robins Would Capture Flag If They Could Beat Chicago.

By Walter Trumbull.

(Copyright, 1930, by The Constitution by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

NEW YORK, July 28.—The baseball races in the major leagues are still close enough to speculate on what may happen; but, in regard to the leaders, what will happen is becoming fairly apparent.

Before the season opened I picked the Athletics to repeat, and I am of the opinion that they are going to do that very thing. The Mackmen, considering the point to which the season has advanced, have a fairly comfortable lead.

Other teams have had several opportunities to race past Philadelphia and open up a gap, but none of them was strong enough to do it. Washington made its bid; but the Senators couldn't hold the race, and I doubt whether they ever will have another chance.

YANKS STRONG.

The Yankees have been a strong hitting team, but unsatisfactory fielding and some poor pitching have kept them in third place. They may still pass Washington and finish second, but that is as high as they are likely to go in the fairly certain that half the world's series will be played in Philadelphia.

The other half of that series is still a bit uncertain as to location. Brooklyn has been the first to bid for it, but it could be Chicago. The Cubs have trimmed the Robins 11 times out of 15 starts, and the teams have seven more games to play. New York, St. Louis and Cincinnati all are tough clubs for Chicago to beat. These three clubs have little chance, less chance, and no chance to grab the flag; but they may get a shot at Brooklyn.

BAID BREAKS.

But remember that the Cubs had a great number of bad breaks in the first part of the season and that they are stronger now than they have been since last year. The possession of the National league pennant, therefore, may hinge upon the result of those seven remaining contests between Chicago and the Robins.

So the world's series should be played either between Philadelphia and Brooklyn; or between Philadelphia and Chicago. And this next trip west of the National league club, which starts around the first of August, should probably give us the answer in that league.

INDIAN, 7, TIGERS, 6.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 28.—Cleveland Indians pulled a sensational ninth-inning rally to beat Detroit Tigers in the series' opener here today, 7 to 6.

Pitcher Elton Hoggsett, of Detroit, broke a 5-5 tie in the first half of the sixth inning when he ran the right field wall, after he had been hit by a line drive from the Indians' left fielder, Al Simmons.

Miss Betty Usher Weds Rev. C. I. Smith

BENNETTSVILLE, S. C., July 28.—Mrs. Sallie V. Usher, of Bennettsville, S. C., announced the marriage of her daughter, Betty, to Rev. Charles L. Smith, of Atlanta, Ga., Sunday evening, July 20. An interesting feature of the wedding lies in the fact that the ceremony was performed in the Inman Park Presbyterian church in Atlanta, the church of which the groom has been pastor since his graduation from Columbia seminary. Mrs. Smith chose as her dame of honor Mrs. Harry K. Holland. The groom chose as his best man Rev. Harry K. Holland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of Conyers, Ga., who also performed the ceremony.

The ceremony was preceded by a musical program rendered by Mrs. M. Large, pianist, and her daughter, Miss Emily Large, who sang "O Promise Me" and "Send Us O Holy Spirit." Palms and tall baskets holding flowers formed a picturesque background and a setting very much in keeping with the ceremony. The dame of honor, only attendant of the bride, wore a coral evening gown and carried gladioli. Elders J. R. Brooks and W. E. Newell, senior elders of the groom's church, were attendants. The bride entered to the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" with her dame of honor, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man. The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white satin fashioned on long lines. Her veil of sheer tulle, made cap shape, was caught to her hair on either side with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses showered with valley lilies tied with lace. Rev. and Mrs. Smith will be at home in the church manse, 1034 Euclid avenue, N. E., Atlanta.

Coroner Exonerates
Accidental Infanticide

CHICAGO, July 28.—(AP)—A father who fell while intoxicated and crushed to death his 5-month-old daughter was exonerated of criminal responsibility today by a coroner's jury.

The wife of Edward M. Johnston, wartime aviator and La Salle street broker who was arrested Saturday after the child's death, collapsed after taking the stand to tell the jurors her husband had always been devoted to her and the baby. She was helped to a seat beside her husband.

Johnston said he had taken several drinks earlier while on the way to a cemetery to decorate the grave of his wife's child by a former marriage.

The infant, Mary Jane, had been left in the father's car Friday night while Mrs. Johnston went to visit her brother. When the baby awoke and cried Johnston carried it in his arms. He stumbled and fell upon the child. When Mary Jane became quiet he laid her in her crib. The baby had suffered broken ribs and a fractured skull and when Mrs. Johnston returned the baby was dead.

Grape Juice
for Health

Physicians Recommend It

A Brain-Sharpener. Pure grape juice, served as a breakfast fruit, is so perfectly adapted to the human system that its rich fruit nourishment and mineral salts are taken into the blood stream without digestive effort—quick, new vigor to meet the awaiting problems of the day!

Non-Fattening. Pure grape juice deserves a prominent place on every reducing diet—first, because it supplies the kind of nourishment the body needs; secondly, because it is non-fattening. Its mildly laxative qualities keep one feeling fit and fine.

A Delightful Refreshment. For more than 60 years Welch's Grape Juice—the pure juice of luscious Concord grapes—has proved a delightfully refreshing beverage for millions of people. Six liberal portions to the pint make it the most temptingly delicious 5c drink in America. Many prefer it diluted with one-third water. Insist on Welch's—pure, unadulterated.

KENTUCKIAN FAVORS PARK-TO-PARK PIKE

Proposed National Highway Would Link Three Fa- mous Beauty Spots.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(AP)—A great national park-to-park highway the Great Smoky Mountain and Shenandoah national reserves, was proposed today by Representative Thatcher, republican, Kentucky.

"These three great parks," he said, "present such different features of beauty and appeal that the vacationists can find no more satisfactory means for utilizing a vacation period than to negotiate by auto these three outstanding scenic and recreational grounds of the east."

The proposed highway would start at Mammoth Cave National Park, 80 miles south of Louisville, and run to Cumberland Gap via Glasgow, Monticello, Cumberland Falls and Middleboro, Ky., and Knoxville, Tenn., to the Great Smoky region.

From there it would run through Bristol, Tenn., and Roanoke and Natural Bridge Va., down the Shenandoah valley, there describing a loop to take in Washington, Fredericksburg, Richmond and Appomattox, before turning across that part of the route extending from the Great Smoky to the Shenandoah valley, and returning to Kentucky over federal highway No. 6.

This portion of the highway would touch Lexington and Frankfort, extend through Louisville and then go south via the Lincoln farm in Larue county to the Mammoth Cave park.

Cool Weather To Follow Rain, Forecast Says

Cooler weather is scheduled to return, after a long-felt absence, today—probably into the afternoon when some more thundershowers are due, with emphasis on the showers rather than thunder.

While rain is on the cards for the afternoon, the thermometer is apt to go a degree or so above the high 93 recorded Monday when the mercury began another slow creep up to a heat wave record. Sunday it failed to go above 92 but the day previous it touched 95.

After the thundershowers today, Director C. F. von Herrmann said Monday, the remainder of the week should be cooler.

Alabama Candidate Hurt in Auto Wreck

BRUNDIDGE, Ala., July 28.—(AP) Judge Hugh D. Merrill, of Anniston, candidate for Lieutenant governor, and his son, Hugh, Jr., were injured when their automobile overturned on a highway one mile from here today.

A butterfly was whipped into the auto and in his effort to remove it from his line of vision, young Merrill lost control of the machine, which went over a fill.

Judge Merrill suffered a severe head wound which required 11 stitches and a knee gash, which also was sewed up. Hugh, Jr., was bruised.

LINGLE INVESTIGATORS TO 'REPORT PROGRESS'

Information Ready for Sub- mission to Chicago Grand Jury.

CHICAGO, July 28.—(AP)—Investigators of the murder of Jake Lingle were ready tonight to "report progress" to the July grand jury.

While the jurors listened today to the last of a number of witnesses summoned to tell of alleged racketeering among other newspaper reporters and of the assassination of Lingle, the prosecutors in conference agreed to report the status of the murder inquiry to the grand jury if requested.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson announced after the conference that the jurors would be asked to express their wish. He said he would offer no objection if the jury desired to hear Charles F. Rathbun, Tribune attorney and chief of the Lingle murder investigators; James McShanou, his assistant, and Patrick Roche, chief of the state's attorney's investigators.

Accepting the prosecutor's offer, the grand jury asked Roche and Rathbun to appear before them tomorrow.

William H. Stuart, political editor of the Evening American, testified before the jury today as the inquiry began last week with the examination of Harry T. Brundidge, St. Louis newspaperman, was renewed. As Stuart emerged he said:

"I know of no profession whose ethics or ideals are higher than journalism. Regarding newspaper racketeering, I don't know of any."

It was Brundidge's charge that several Chicago newspaper reporters were profiting from rackets through gangland connections as Lingle had done without the knowledge of their employers.

Stuart was followed on the stand by Samuel E. Atkinson, corporation counsel of Chicago and chief aide to Mayor Thompson. The final witness was Colonel Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Tribune. Neither would say what they were asked or what they testified.

LIVERPOOL, England, July 28.—(AP)—A new outbreak in the sectarian quarrel between Protestants and Catholics occurred here tonight after police had quelled fighting at the law courts this morning.

The police dispersed the crowd, arresting three persons. Three women had been taken before the magistrate this morning charged with disorderly conduct, and will be heard tomorrow.

Exiled Lithuanian Foiled in Escape Try

KOVNO, Lithuania, July 28.—(AP) Wolff's Agency today reported that Augustine Waldemaras, former dictator, banished for one year, attempted on Sunday to escape from the Plati estate, near Krottingen, where he has been interned.

Waldemaras, with almost complete freedom of movement, was walking through the woods with two friends when an automobile drove up and stopped. The dispatch said he attempted to enter the car saying he would take a ride in the country.

A policeman interfered. Waldemaras protested.

As a consequence the interned former premier was under strict surveillance.

Eight persons were arrested. Waldemaras was banished by a Lithuanian state decree on Friday.

The government edict sent the "Enfante Terrible" of the League of Nations into banishment for "endangering public order and safety" after considering his arrest for high treason.

The Housewife's Duty To her home, not to her grocer

The housewife was not put on earth to support grocers. She owes no grocer a living. She does owe herself and her family the greatest amount of the best food her money can buy. Her only duty when buying food is to her home.

The honest grocer asks no favors. He does not expect charity. He is willing to be judged by the amount of good food he gives for the consumer's dollar.

A & P is a grocer who has already been judged by many consumers. After seventy years in business, it enjoys the patronage of over 5,000,000 thrifty housewives.

So large a following of critical shoppers is the result of a single simple fact—that the public buys where it obtains the most for its money.

Legislator, Editor Engage in Fist Fight

LAKELAND, Fla., July 28.—(AP)—Leon Prime, state representative from Polk county, and Sam H. Farabee, editor of the Lakeland Ledger, local afternoon newspaper, engaged in a fist fight in a downtown office building here today but neither was seriously injured.

The Ledger said the fight was the outgrowth of articles published some time ago regarding an incident alleged to have occurred in a local hotel in which Glenn B. Skipper, republican national committeeman, was said to have received from Prime a sum of money aggregating $1,500, alleged to have been paid to Prime for Skipper for support in a contest for United States marshal for the southern district of Florida.

When the two men passed each other in the office building, words were exchanged which led to blows. They grappled and both went down struggling. E. M. Knight, an attorney, whose office is located in the building, separated them.

Shirts were torn and in addition to both men being skinned about the face, Farabee reported that he had been bitten in the side.

Officer J. K. Stephens summoned the principals and witnesses to appear in police court Wednesday morning.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

FARMER BROWN'S BOY IS CALLED HOME.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

The fun that doth to anger lead becomes a sorry thing indeed.

—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown's Boy and Farmer Brown himself were at work in the cornfield. Jim Crow was sitting on a fence post. He was watching them work and to hear him talking Crow-talk you might have thought that he was bossing the job. By and by, the sound of a horn reached them. It came from the house. It was a signal. It was the signal Mother Brown always uses when she wants Farmer Brown or Farmer Brown's Boy to come up to the house.

"Run along up and see what your mother wants," said Farmer Brown. Farmer Brown's Boy put his hoe against the fence and started up the Long Lane on his way up to the house. Jim Crow flew over and alighted on Farmer Brown's Boy's shoulder. So presently they reached the barnyard. Farmer Brown's Boy was very much surprised when he opened the door and caught a glimpse of Mother Brown's face. He knew at once that something had disturbed her very much indeed. He couldn't remember when he had seen his mother look quite so provoked.

"Where's that Crow?" snapped Mother Brown. "I don't know," replied Farmer Brown's Boy. "He rode up from the cornfield on my shoulder; so he is somewhere around."

"Look at that wash!" commanded Mother Brown. Farmer Brown's Boy looked at the clothes-basket once more piled high with snowy linen. "Well," said he, "what of it?"

"This is the second time these clothes have been washed this morning," declared Mother Brown, "and all on account of that pesky bird of yours."

You should have seen the look on Farmer Brown's Boy's face. He blinked, quite as if he didn't understand what his mother was saying. "What has my Crow got to do with your washing?" he demanded.

"Everything!" retorted his mother.

"This washing has been out on the lines once and when my back was turned that Crow pulled every clothes-pin and dropped the wet clothes on the ground. What is more, he stole the clothespins and that is why I've called you. I can't hang clothes out without clothespins and I have only half a dozen left."

Jim Crow was sitting on a fence post.

"But how do you know it was the Crow? Did you see him?" Farmer Brown's Boy asked.

"No, I didn't see him!" snapped Mother Brown. "But no one else would have taken those clothespins."

"But," protested Farmer Brown's Boy, "he went down with me to the cornfield this morning and he came back with me; so how could he have pulled your clothespins?"

"That bird has a perfectly good pair of wings," replied Mother Brown. "Probably he flew up there and then flew back down to the cornfield without your knowing it. You can depend upon it, that pesky bird is responsible. I have stood for a lot of his mischief, but this is too much. Now, you go look for those clothespins."

Farmer Brown's Boy didn't know what to say. He wanted to laugh. Yes, sir, he actually wanted to laugh. He was sorry for his mother and he was sorry that she had all that extra work to do; but the funny side of it struck him and he wanted to laugh. He didn't quite dare do it, however.

The next story: "Farmer Brown's Boy Finds the Clothespins."

TORNADO KILLS 20, WRECKS TURKISH CITY

ADRIANOPLE, Turkey, July 28.—(AP)—This ancient capital of the Ottoman empire and treasure store of Moslem architecture tonight was a mass of fallen minarets, domes and roofs blown over by a tornado that killed 20 persons and injured hundreds yesterday.

Four-fifths of the houses in the city, which has a population of about 60,000, were destroyed. The tornado spared the roofs of big government buildings but literally blew out the windows and doors. Official documents were whirled out through the streets like a snowstorm.

After the tornado large hailstones poured down. Crops in the surrounding country were ruined and trees were uprooted.

Nine minarets, picturesque Moslem towers giving a distinctive quality to the "sky line" of Adrianople, were hurled by the tornado to the ground. So were the tops of four minarets rising from the famous mosque of the Sultan Selim, one of the great treasures of Moslem architecture.

A freak accident occurred in the crash of one of the minarets. The stones fell upon a carriage, killing two horses but not touching the occupants.

Wagon Driver Hits Automobile, Jailed

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 28.—(UN)—D. Apperson, negro, was charged with operating a horse and wagon while intoxicated here today. He allegedly drove the vehicle into an automobile. Authorities said it was the first time in 10 years such a charge had been filed.

in the presence of his mother. He knew well enough that she would be ready to laugh herself by and by, but he also knew that she didn't like laughing then. So he went out to look for Jim Crow. He had an idea that if he could find Jim Crow he could find the clothespins.

Deafness Lasting Result Of Gertrude Ederle's Swim

BY LORENA HICKOK.

RYE, N. Y., July 28.—(AP)—She teaches swimming in a boardwalk pool, a bronzed young woman with a determined grin.

Unless you raise your voice she cannot hear you and looks at you with an expression that has in it embarrassment, bewilderment, fear.

Across the back of her bathing suit is lettered: "Ederle."

Four years ago this August Gertrude Ederle swam the English channel and came home to receive a Broadway welcome, congratulatory messages from President Coolidge and Governor Smith, and vaudeville offers that were said at the time to amount to nearly $1,000,000.

But she pushed her hair back behind her ears—a gesture that has become characteristic since she began to lose her hearing two years ago as a result of those 14 hours in the English channel—and said a little wistfully:

"It wasn't worth while. 'I'm not sorry I did it. Only—if I'd known how it was going to be, that I'd have done it. It—it wasn't worth it.'"

Four years ago Gertrude Ederle rode up the bay on the Macaron and up Broadway in an open car while crowds cheered and ticker-tape and paper snow filled the air.

"But sometimes at dances the orchestra plays 'Let Me Call You Sweetheart,' the song I kept humming while I was in the channel—the song the bands played when I came home. And then it all sort of comes back over me again, and I have to sneak away or somebody will see my cry."

A year ago last fall, at the end of two years in vaudeville, Gertrude's hearing began to fail. Last winter she could not hear at all. It is better now, but already her voice has begun to take on the flat quality that the voices of the deaf have.

"The doctors say it was the swim that did it," she said, "but I think it was terribly strenuous years when I was swimming."

TOM MOONEY OFFERS NEW PARDON PETITION

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—(AP)—Thomas Mooney today mailed a new pardon petition to Governor C. C. Young on the eve of a state supreme court hearing for John MacDonald, recanting witness whose testimony 12 years ago helped send Mooney and Warren K. Billings to prison for life for the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing.

The plea was mailed a few hours before supreme court justices denied Mooney's request to attend tomorrow's hearing.

Chief Justice William H. Waste said the court deemed "unnecessary" the presence of either Mooney or Billings, being concerned solely with MacDonald's testimony and its bearing on the pardon application of Billings.

MacDonald, located recently in Baltimore, repudiated testimony he gave during the bombing trials and said he perjured himself, having been coached by police to identify Mooney and Billings after their arrest.

Ten persons were killed in the bombing. Search for two important documents said to have a vital bearing on MacDonald's story was conducted unsuccessfully by police. Captain Charles Goff, who as a sergeant directed identification of Billings and Mooney, had depended on the papers to disprove MacDonald's story. Goff explained they contained a bartender's statement that MacDonald told him of seeing Mooney and Billings at the scene of the explosion before he was questioned by police.

Member's Charge Heavy Drinking Stirs Commons

LONDON, July 28.—(AP)—The question of "privilege" under which parliament guards its right to keep its own house in order today was raised in the house of commons by Earl Winterton, conservative, who moved a resolution denouncing E. Sandham, member from Kirkdale, quoted in the Manchester Guardian as saying that members "can get stupidly drunk" in the house.

Winterton, who represents the Horsham and Worthing division, moved a resolution that a speech of Mr. Sandham, laborite, reported in the Manchester Guardian, is "a gross libel upon the honorable members of this house and a gross breach of its privileges."

Earl Winterton then quoted an alleged speech made by Sandham in Manchester on Saturday as follows: "The labor members can receive bribes to help pass a doubtful bill in the interests of private individuals. Labor members can get stupidly drunk in this place, but none of these things are against the sacred traditions of the house, but in keeping with them."

"It is known that labor members receive money from money lenders and other interests and it is known that labor members of parliament get drunk at the house."

Winterton declared that this charge constituted "gross libel." When he concluded there were shouts of "Where is Sandham?" But the member in question was not present.

Premier MacDonald then moved adjournment of the debate until tomorrow. To this the speaker agreed, asserting that he would notify Sandham that his presence was required.

Tobacco Warehouses Packed For Season's Opening Today

Federal Graders Stationed at Three Markets in State To Aid Farmers Desiring Service.

MACON, Ga., July 28.—(AP)—Auction blocks were set Monday night in 22 southern Georgia markets, ready for the going that will open the tobacco marketing season Tuesday morning. Packed into each of the warehouses are thousands of pounds of bright leaf tobacco, some of it said to be of the best grades ever offered at a Georgia auction.

From the sales that will start Tuesday morning, continuing each day until the season is over, a steady stream of gold is expected to flow into the hands of the growers.

There are approximately 50 warehouses in southern Georgia, filled with the golden weed. After each day's sale the floor will be cleared and new tobacco will take its place for the following day's business.

From the last sale Friday until Monday morning no sales are made, this time being required to clean up the volume of business transacted during the week.

It is anticipated that more than $10,000,000 will be realized from this year's offerings.

Last year the production was 90,743,520 pounds, from which the growers realized $16,672,780.27, or an average of 18.37 cents per pound.

Location of Markets.
The tobacco markets in southern Georgia are located in the following cities:

Adel, Bainbridge, Baxley, Blackshear, Cairo, Camilla, Clayton, Douglas, Fitzgerald, Hahira, Hazlehurst, Milledgeville, Nashville, Pelham, Quitman, Statesboro, Thomasville, Tifton, Valdosta, Vidalia and Waycross.

At three of these markets there will be federal graders to aid the farmers who desire that service. A nominal charge of 10 cents per 100 pounds is to be made for those who use this service. It is stated:

Douglas, Baxley and Tifton are to be the headquarters for the graders. These graders have made tours during the last few days, finishing up their work today, showing the farmers the various grades of tobacco that they have in sight.

Buyers of all of the leading tobacco companies from that and foreign countries are in the tobacco markets of southern Georgia. They will continue in the field until the deal is over, it is stated.

Outlook Encouraging.
The outlook was never more encouraging than on the eve of the opening of the markets. Farmers are optimistic, believing that they will do better in cash returns from their crop than they were able to do last season, which was the best to that time.

The weather during this year in southern Georgia have been ideal for tobacco production, in most localities. There are fields, of course, where the golden weed is not up to the high standard desired, but reports indicate that the tobacco is grading high in most instances.

At Metter tonight there were three-quarters of a million pounds of leaf spread on the floors of three warehouses. In Valdosta, Vidalia, Douglas, Blackshear and Milledgeville there was even a greater volume on the floors for the opening sales.

At Douglas today the tobacco growers held a mass meeting at the courthouse. E. D. McDowell, supervisor of government grading in Georgia, and Florida, together with three graders, explained to the growers how the grading process will operate and the advantages that will be obtained.

Farmers brought in small packages of tobacco and these were graded before the crowd.

E. C. Westbrook, of the State College of Agriculture, is in the tobacco belt, also, lending whatever aid he can give to the marketing of tobacco.

Records May Be Broken.
Thomasville, Milledgeville, Valdosta and several other points indicated today that all previous records will be broken in this year's marketing, both as to poundage and cash returns.

Warehouses throughout the belt will be open day and night throughout the season. A force will be on duty at all times, so that tobacco brought in at any time during the night may be placed on the floor.

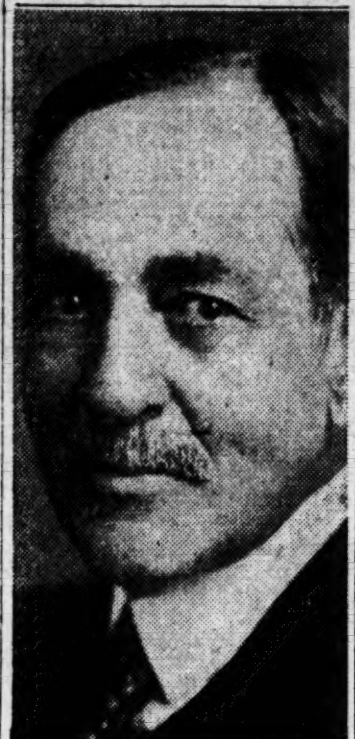

In most of the cities there will be a coin tossed to determine which warehouse shall have the first sale in that market.

Opening day is a big event in all tobacco markets. Growers will be on hand in great numbers, it is expected, to get a line on the prices that will govern the marketing of this year's crop.

MYATT HEADS VALDOSTA BOARD OF TRADE.
VALDOSTA, Ga., July 28.—At the annual meeting Monday of the Valdosta Tobacco Board of Trade Tracy Myatt, of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, was re-elected president. Mr. Myatt has filled the position since the initial organization of the board of trade here, many years ago.

Other officers elected include Alex Jones, of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, vice president; O. W.

CARSWELL NOMINATION ATTRACTS ATTENTION

WAXCROSS, Ga., July 28.—The action of the republicans of the 11th congressional district in nominating Dr. Henry J. Carswell, of Waycross, as their candidate for congress concentrates the political attention of the entire state on this district.

The 11th district is the only district in Georgia to have a republican candidate for congress and the only one to have held a republican congressional convention. Not only that but Ware county, one of the counties in the 11th district, has held a convention and has nominated candidates for the state senate and for the state house of representatives.

MACON BANK TRANSFER RECORD IS ENTERED
MACON, Ga., July 28.—(AP)—Record of the former transfer of the old Fourth National bank corner at Third and Cherry streets, was filed today in the office of Vivian H. Roberts, clerk of the superior court.

The transfer was made by the Continental Trust Company, an Atlanta corporation. The consideration was $250,000, according to the record.

The property was purchased by the Continental Trust Company here some months ago. It is expected that a new bank building will eventually be built on the site to accommodate the merged Continental Trust Company and the Macon National Bank.

Dudley, of the China American Tobacco Company, treasurer; Bennett Hooks, of Wilson, N. C., secretary and sales supervisor.

It is estimated tonight that more than half a million pounds of tobacco had been placed on the warehouse floors. Rain through part of the morning and evening slacked up the hauling, but during the night, unless it rains again, will see the warehouse floors filled to capacity, it is believed.

Three special cars brought in the last contingent of the tobacco buyers, warehousemen and members of the office forces this morning. Scores of them have been arriving in small groups by train and automobile for the past week, and tonight hotel lobbies are thronged with representatives of the tobacco interests, ready to begin buying at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

C. C. BRANTLEY DIES IN MACON HOSPITAL

Gifted Editor and Leading Citizen of Valdosta Succumbs to Stroke.

MACON, Ga., July 28.—(AP)—Death Monday removed from the ranks of Georgia newspapermen a distinguished editor with the passing of Charles C. Brantley, editor of The Valdosta Times.

Stricken with paralysis while attending the annual convention of the Georgia Press Association, of which he was a valued and popular member, Mr. Brantley was brought to a hospital here last Tuesday.

Unconscious most of the time while fighting the approach of death, Mr. Brantley finally succumbed to an early hour Monday.

Mrs. Brantley, a newspaper woman, Thomas F. Brantley, of Tallahassee, Fla., and Marvin Brantley, of Quitman, brothers, and a son, Frank, of Valdosta, were all at the bedside when the end came.

At the time of his death, Mr. Brantley was 63 years of age. He was born in Milledgeville, moving to Valdosta to assume the duties of reporter on The Times, later marrying Miss Florence Williams, then society editor of the newspaper. He is survived by his widow and adopted son, Frank; three brothers, Marvin E. Brantley, Quitman; George Brantley, Lakeland, Fla.; and Tom Brantley, Tallahassee, Fla.; and three sisters, Mrs. W. G. Crawley, Augusta; Mrs. H. B. Moore, Milledgeville; and Mrs. J. L. Crawford, Dothan, Ala.

Louie Morris, president of the Georgia Press Association, from his office in Atlanta, upon learning of Mr. Brantley's death, named five members of the state body to attend the funeral as an official escort.

The five names were: Herbert H. Wind, Cairo Messenger; Royal Daniel, Gainesville, Fla.; E. H. Jones, Thomasville Times Enterprise; W. T. Shytle, Adel News; and C. D. Allen, Milledgeville Observer.

Leading Citizens Gifted Editor.
Charles C. Brantley had occupied for many years the place of one of Valdosta's most outstanding citizens. He had been a resident of that city for about 28 or 40 years, and he had been a member of the time connected with the newspaper work. When a young man he went there as a traveling salesman for a large grocery store, but he was immensely popular with the trade in the territory he covered. Growing tired of travel he became identified with the Valdosta Telegram, commencing first as a reporter and after the late Colonel C. R. Pendleton disposed of The Times and came to Macon, Mr. Brantley became its editor, which position he held continuously until the present time.

Mr. Brantley possessed a charm of personality which made him friends and a credit to the city. As an editor he ranked high among writers. He was a student, possessed a wonderful memory and had the gift of expressing his thoughts in a trenchant, vigorous manner. He loved Valdosta and The Times, and at all times was jealous of their good fortunes. His talent was always used for the advancement of the interests of the city of his adoption.

In public affairs Mr. Brantley's interest was always keen, and his views were clear-cut and forcefully expressed. Vigorous and determined, to a part, he never allowed his pen to become tinged with bitterness. The expression of his opposition to men or measures seldom, if ever, came from his pen. He rather drew the respect and admiration of his opponents. As a conversationalist, speaker and writer of interest at any gathering, although for many years his health has been impaired, he was always cheerful, radiating good nature even when his physical condition was far from normal.

Served Under Gov. Jos. E. Brown.
During the administration of Governor Joseph E. Brown Mr. Brantley was tendered and accepted a place as one of the executive secretaries. This position was held with distinction for a time, but he was never satisfied away from his first love—the Valdosta Times, and he resigned and came back to his place as head of the paper. Again at the death of Colonel C. R. Pendleton, who was editor of the Macon Telegraph, Mr. Brantley was called away from Valdosta for a time, becoming associate editor of the Telegraph. Here again the longing for Valdosta and The Times grew until he relinquished the place in Macon and went back to his friends and The Times.

Among Valdostans, who loved and esteemed him, he has left many places of responsibility, which he only accepted because he loved Valdosta. For many years he served as a director of the chamber of commerce and was a charter member of the Valdosta Rotary Club, one of its directors and served a term as its president.

Only one institution outside of Valdosta has ever been able to hold his interest and service continuously. For nearly 20 years he has been a member of the board of trustees of the state sanitarium at Milledgeville. During those many years of service there he became much attached to the work and gave wholeheartedly of his time and influence to every movement to better the condition of the unfortunate in care of the institution.

The body was taken home to Valdosta Monday afternoon, accompanied by his wife and other members of the family.

It will lie in state in the Lowndes county courthouse Tuesday afternoon from 5 to 6 o'clock, after which the casket will be removed to the First Methodist church. Funeral services will be conducted at 6:30 o'clock and interment will be in the Sunset Hill cemetery.

CHILD, 2, KILLED BY HIT-RUN AUTO

Baby Knocked From Father's Arms on Side of Road Near Alma.

ALMA, Ga., July 28.—The two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adell Peacock, residing just outside the city limits, was struck and instantly killed Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock by a hit-and-run car. Mr. and Mrs. Peacock, with their baby were coming into town to visit friends and were walking on the side of the highway.

Mr. Peacock was carrying the baby in his arms. They heard the car coming at a high rate of speed and stepped off the pavement to the edge of the road.

Tourists following the car stated that the car swerved off the pavement, striking Mr. Peacock, knocking the child out of his arms to the pavement.

They were picked up by passing motorists and brought to town and officers immediately gave chase, but were outrun.

The hit-and-run car was a blue Chevrolet coupe carrying an Asheville, N. C. tag and driven by a youth with blonde hair. Mr. Peacock suffered a broken shoulder and internal injuries. Mrs. Peacock escaped injury.

Dog Under Treatment For Rabies, Stolen; Warning Is Issued

MAON, Ga., July 28.—(AP)—J. H. Denson, who runs Denson's Nursery, at Billy Goat Hill, 13 miles from Macon on the Cochran short route, has a warning for the person who stole a dog from him Sunday.

The dog has been bitten by a mad cat and is likely to develop rabies.

Mr. Denson has been undergoing a siege of mad pets on his place. Five weeks ago, a dog in the neighborhood bit his daughter, Mae, 7 years old, and he has been bringing her to Macon for treatment every day. At the same time, the dog bit the family cat, a female at least seven years old.

A week ago, the cat bit Mrs. Denson so viciously that she had to choke it off. It was discovered that a short while before the cat had also bit a German police dog and two Feist puppies. Mr. Denson gave the German police dog away to a veterinarian, who is treating him. At the same time, he started treatment for the two Feist puppies.

Sunday, while Mr. and Mrs. Denson were visiting in Soperton, somebody stole one of the Feist puppies. Mr. Denson had started treating him, but the dog is apt to go mad in the possession of its new owner.

At the same time, it was learned that Dr. J. M. Boyd, of Phillips Station, on the short route, unwittingly kept a mad dog in the home with him for two days before he discovered the canine had rabies.

BOY JUMPS FROM TRUCK LOCOMOTIVE KILLS HIM

BLAKELY, Ga., July 28.—(AP)—Roy Mayo, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mayo, of Grant, Ala., was killed Monday when he jumped or fell from the rear of a truck under the wheels of a passenger train.

The family was returning from a fishing camp on the Chattahoochee river. In the truck were the father, mother and two children. The machine was filled with camping equipment.

The truck had just cleared the tracks of the Central of Georgia railway at a crossing a short distance from the station here when a west-bound train from Albany approached. The truck, which was owned by G. B. Ragdale, of Phenix City, was driven by the dead boy's father, John Mayo.

As the truck crossed the tracks, Roy evidently became frightened by the oncoming train and jumped after the truck had cleared the tracks. The driving wheels of the engine crushed his head. Riding on the truck in addition to Mr. Mayo and the boy, were Roy's mother, his six-year-old brother, Robert, and Mrs. Ragdale. All had been on a fishing trip on the Chattahoochee river, in Seminole county, and were returning to their home across the river from Columbus.

Honored at Camp Foster.
BARNESVILLE, Ga., July 28.—First Lieutenant Homer Sappington, of the Barnesville Blues, has been appointed range officer at Camp Foster, Fla., where the Georgia regiment is now encamped.

Family Forbidding Youth From Keeping Company With Girl Led to Deaths of Two in Battle.
HAZLEHURST, Ga., July 28.—(AP) Not an argument over the ownership of a dog, but a blighted romance between Lee Crosby and the sister of Ben Nabers led to the death of two men and the wounding of a third.

Ill feeling between the Crosbys and Nabers had been evident for some time. The anti-climax came a few days ago when two members of the families engaged in a street fist battle and the outcome seemed to be amicable after a hearing in mayor's court here.

Saturday the Crosbys accosted Ben Nabers in front of a pool room. Joe L. Crosby, 60, the father, and Tom and Lee Crosby renewed the question of the Nabers family forbidding Lee Crosby from keeping company with the Nabers girl.

The argument became heated and guns were used. The elder Crosby and Ben Nabers were killed. Tom Crosby was shot through the shoulder but Lee Crosby was unharmed.

Authorities, after investigation, said there would be no inquest because of eyewitnesses. The report that the argument resulting in the shooting was over a dog was also discounted by officers, who uncovered the feud version.

The Crosby boys were taken to the jail at Mount Vernon, because there is no jail at Hazlehurst. Later Tom was permitted to return to his home because of the nature of his injury but he is under guard, day and night.

LAST RITES HELD FOR SLAIN MEN.
HAZLEHURST, Ga., July 28.—(AP) Two men who lost their lives in a pistol battle on the streets here Saturday night were buried Monday. The funeral of Joe L. Crosby was held at Zora church, while the funeral of Ben Nabers took place at Douglas.

In the meantime Tom Crosby, who was brought here from the Mount Vernon jail and who is under guard day and night, appears to be in a serious condition from a pistol wound in his chest. It was thought at first that he was wounded in the arm, but the bullet apparently continued on. He is having hemorrhages of the mouth, according to attendants and his condition is regarded as serious.

Lee Crosby is still in jail in Mount Vernon.

Tom Crosby was one of the principals in the tragedy here Saturday night, in which his father, Joe, was shot dead by Ben Nabers and in turn Nabers was shot through the heart by Tom Crosby and died while trying to reload his pistol.

It has developed that all four of the parties had pistols and that each had threatened to kill the others.
